Cuba Asks More Than Apology

Demands Action Against Foes In U.S.

HAVANA (AP) — The newspaper of Prime Minister Fidel Castro's revolutionary movement Saturday called Washington's apology for a private plane raid "a moral victory." But it said apology was not enough and demanded sweeping action against anti-Castro activities in the United States.

Revolucion provided the first semiofficial reaction to the Washington note of Friday expressing regrets that the plane escaped U. S. detection and took off for Cuba from a base near Miami. Castro's government has yet to comment on the note.

The newspaper said that "the question is not resolved in any way with a simple presentation of apologies" and added: "All that is hidden behind the event—must be brought into the open."

Revolucion demanded that the United States uncover what it said were bases of operations against Cuba and bring the organizers of the operation to trial.

The United States must see to it that not a single plane "again rises from North American soil to attack Cuba," the newspaper said.

Revolucion also called on Washington to denounce activities "of war criminals and their associates who operate in that country, spurred by statements and attitudes of officials and legislators bent on economic, diplomatic and even military aggression," against Cuba.

Castro said in a TV address that the U. S. based plane exploded and killed the two American occupants as they were trying to firebomb a sugar mill 100 miles east of Havana.

Revolucion asserted a U.S. attempt was being made "to drown out dissemination (of news) of the crime" with the postponement of the execution of Caryl Chessman, condemned kidnaper, in California and news of President Eisenhower's Latin American tour next week.

In an apparent reference to Washington's statement that the U. S. based plane escaped detection, Revolucion carried a front page cartoon showing a tincup with a sign saying: "Cooperate: buy radar for the undefended authorities of Florida."

BULGARS MUST NOT ADMIRE WESTERN PRODUCTS

VIENNA (AP) — Bulgarians were told this week they should give up their open admiration of Western products, especially automobiles. The Sofia Communist newspaper Narodna Mladesch declared many such objects result from colonial exploitation.

IT'S A BOY!: Crowds surge against the gate at Buckingham Palace in London to catch a fleeting glimpse of the one-foot gilt-edge notice posted to announce the birth of third child, a son, to England's Queen Elizabeth II. Some 1,000 persons had massed before the Palace gate to witness posting of the joyous announcement. The baby is the first to be born to a reigning British sovereign in 103 years. Diary Describes Hopeless Trek Of Airmen In Desert

WIESBADEN, Germany (AP)—"No hope yet, very cold nite." That's the despairing final notation in a diary covering the Libyan Desert trek of the crew of the U.S. B24 bomber "Lady Be Good."

2nd Lt. Robert F. Toner of North Attleboro, Mass., one of nine men who perished in what the U.S. Air Force describes as "one of the greatest mysteries in aviation history," pencilled the words into a small notebook in the desert April 12, 1943.

That was eight days after they ran out of gas and took to their parachutes. They were returning to North Africa from an attack on Naples, Italy, their first combat mission of World War II.

The bombardier, 2nd Lt. John S. Woravka of Cleveland, apparently was lost during the jump. The others reassembled and hiked north toward the Mediterranean, nearly 500 miles away, in hopes of reaching their base at Solukh Field, Libya.

Toner, a blond, 26-year-old former garageman and car salesman, told of prayer and courage in a battle against the elements—thirst they could quench with only about a thimbleful of water a day, desert glare and blistering heat by day, near-freezing cold by night.

The Air Force released the diary Saturday:

"Sunday, Apr. 4, Naples — 28 planes — things well mixed up—got lost returning, out of gas, jumped, landed in desert at 2 a.m. morning, no one badly hurt, can't find John, all others reset. (Meaning they reassembled)

"Monday, Apr. 5, start walking NW (northwest), still no John. few rations, ½ canteen of water, one cap full per day. Sun fairly warm, good breeze from NW. Nite very cold. No sleep. Rested and walked.

"Tues., Apr. 6, rested at 11.30, sun very warm no breeze, spent p.m. in hell, no planes etc., rested until 5:00 p.m., walked and rested all nite. 15 min on, 5 min off.

"Wed, Apr. 7, same routine, everyone getting weak, can't get very far. Prayers all the time, again p.m. very warm, hell. Everyone can't sleep, everyone sore from gout.

"Thurs., Apr. 8, hit sand dunes, very miserable. Good wind but continuous blowing of sand, everyone now very weak, thought Sam and Moore were all done. Lamotte eyes are gone, everyone else's are bad. Still going nw.

(The reference was to S.Sgt. Samuel R. Adams of Eureka, Ill., S.Sgt. Vernon L. Moore of New Boston, Ohio, and T.Sgt. Robert E. Lamotte of Lake Linden, Mich.)

"Fri., Apr. 9, Shelly, Rip, Moore separate and try to go for help. Rest of us all very weak, eyes bad, not any travel. Still very little water. Nites are about 35 degrees, good wind (omit good

Major Storm Aims Wrath At Illinois: 18 Dead In East

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A major winter storm aimed its wrath at Illinois Saturday night.

Heavy snow warnings forecast a fall of 4 to 8 inches Saturday night and Sunday in northern Illinois, still carpeted from a heavy plastering earlier this week. Sleet and rain were expected to rake the southern two-thirds of the state.

Hazardous driving warnings were issued for most of the state and a light snow that began falling in central Illinois early Saturday evening already was slicking highways.

At the same time, the storm coming out of the southwest was pushing temperatures upward from the previous night's chilling lows that ranged from 1 above zero at Rockford to 20 at Belleville.

The Weather Bureau predicted high temperatures Sunday would range between 28 and 35 degrees in the north and 35 and 40 in the south.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A staggering onslaught of snow—reinforced by bone-chilling winds — kept portions of the East paralyzed Saturday while a new storm pasted the central plains and rolled northeastward.

Hundreds of motorists remained stranded on the New York State Thruway from Syracuse to Buffalo. Gale-force winds scooped more than two feet of snow into 18-foot drifts.

The storm which rolled across the South at midweek and then punched northward along the Atlantic seaboard buried vast sections of Upstate New York, Pennsylvania and Maryland.

At least 18 deaths as a result of the storm were reported in five states.

Traffic over the normally busy Pennsylvania Turnpike was tied up nearly 36 hours before men and machines won a battle against snow and wind. Parts of the big superhighway were closed for 185 miles until traffic began moving Saturday evening. One stretch had been closed since Thursday night.

Snow up to three feet swamped the western slopes of the Allegheny Mountains, and drifts topped 10 feet in many places. Motels, restaurants and churches were places of refuge for thousands of motorists.

More than 300 persons crammed into a small restaurant at Somerset, Pa., along the turnpike. They played cards, slept, read magazines, drank coffee—and even offered to help wash the dishes.

Aside from the Thruway, other main roads in storm-raked areas of New York State were either closed or open only to one-way traffic. All forms of public transportation were snarled.

Tow-trucks struggled to move abandoned vehicles to clear the way for plows along the snow-clogged thruway. State troopers counted 90 tractor-trailers, 300 passenger cars and 6 buses abandoned on a one-mile stretch south of Rochester.

To the south, Maryland was given its worst wintry pounding in two dozen years as up to 31

Khrushchev Hints At More Loans For Indonesia

BANDUNG, Indonesia (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev held out hope Saturday of more loans to Indonesia, declaring he is ready to aid "those who are fighting against colonialism."

"You can't kick colonialism out with prayers, no more than you can teach a tiger to eat straw," he told a cheering crowd at the city hall in an arrival speech.

While independent, Indonesia still is embroiled with its former Dutch rulers over ownership of West New Guinea. This apparently was what Khrushchev had in mind.

A responsible government source said Khrushchev in talks so far has shown concern that Indonesia now is on increasingly friendly terms with the United States.

In this connection, the source said Khrushchev in private talks already has told President Sukarno he can virtually disregard Red China's complaint about Indonesia's rural trade policy.

"He told President Sukarno that Indonesia should do what it thinks is right and not worry about the Chinese," the source said.

Peiping has been fuming over Indonesia's ban on alien rural traders, a move many see as the first step toward killing the vast economic powers of the Chinese here. Most rural traders are Chinese and some now are leaving for Red China.

Communism has been having its troubles in this neutralist nation over the last two years. Some see Khrushchev's 12-day Java and Bali tour as a move to stop the trend.

CAMPAIGN OF RIDICULE

BUDAPEST (AP) — The Hungarian Daily Magyar Nemzet has joined a campaign of ridicule against bulging thespian waistlines with such comments as: "It is far from an edifying spectacle to see a corpulent Hamlet waddling across stage. It is equally ridiculous for a Cyrano to wear a pot-belly under his large nose. And in vain do we hear that Cassius has a lean and hungry look if we all see the contrary is true."

To Discuss Defense, Trip On Radio - TV

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower sets out next week on a personal mission aimed at demonstrating that the United States wants to be a good partner and a good neighbor to Latin America.

Sunday night, on the eve of his departure, Eisenhower will discuss his plans for the trip in a 15-minute speech to be carried nationally on radio and television.

The President worked Saturday on the speech, which White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said will also contain some references to the nation's defenses.

The speech, starting at 6:15 p.m. will be carried live by the ABC and CBS television networks and by ABC and Mutual Radio. There will be a film showing on NBC-TV at 6:30 p.m. and delayed radio broadcasts on CBS at 8:15 p.m. and on NBC at 8:35 p.m.

Monday morning the President will set out on a 15,560-mile tour that will take him to Brazil, Argentina, Chile and Uruguay, the four southernmost nations of the hemisphere. His return to Washington is scheduled for March 6, following a rest in Puerto Rico.

The tour is the second of three he has planned in an effort to improve world understanding. In December, he visited 11 nations of Europe, the Middle East and Africa. A June tour of the Soviet Union and the far east is in the works.

Some demonstrations reportedly had been planned in protest of the scheduled execution of kidnaper-sex pervert Caryl Chessman. A Friday reprieve for Chessman may have taken the steam from such plans.

There has been some criticism from U.S. and Latin American sources that Eisenhower has neglected the lands to the South. The President himself has said he feels his administration has made great efforts to develop better inter-American understanding.

He apparently is seeking new ways to improve such understanding, and is taking with him on his tour the eight members of his National Advisory Committee on Inter-American Relations.

The committee, headed by Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and including the President's brother, Milton S. Eisenhower, is charged with bringing forth creative new ideas for improving U.S.-Latin American relations.

Order FCC, FTC Report On Steps Against Payola

WASHINGTON (AP)—House investigators ordered two big government agencies Saturday to report early next month on what steps they have taken to stamp out payola.

Shifting the spotlight from disc jockeys and record companies, the probers scheduled new hearings for March 3-4 to hear from the Federal Communications Commission and the Federal Trade Commission.

The announcement by Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark) of the House Legislative Oversight subcommittee shed little additional light on the group's future plans. Harris said merely that the FCC and the FTC will testify on "their actions and activities to date on payola."

The last time officials of these agencies appeared before the subcommittee last autumn, they were sharply criticized for not cracking down on the rigging of television quiz shows. This time they can point to steps, some far-reaching, they have taken against payola.

The FCC, which regulates the broadcasting industry, has asked each radio and TV station in the country to report whether its personnel have been involved in payola, or underscover payments for plugging records.

And the FTC which polices the trade industries, has filed complaints against more than two score record distributors and manufacturers accusing them of payola practices.

Soviet Tightening Pressure On Berlin

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Soviet Union appears to have caught the Western Allies in a damaging trap with its latest move aimed at building up Communist East Germany and destroying an independent West Berlin.

The United States, Britain and France reportedly see no way out of the diplomatic snare which does not represent some retreat or symbolic weakening of their position in Germany. The choice they have is the choice of the lesser evil.

The alternatives the Soviets have given them in practical terms is this:

1. To let some of their military officers in Germany use passes for travel into East Germany which would imply a degree of recognition of the German Communist government; or—

2. To scrap the system of military missions, now more than a dozen years old, by which the Big Four powers maintain liaison among their occupation headquarters in Germany and keep some check on what is happening in each others' areas.

The United States, Britain and France are understood to have agreed at least tentatively in the last few days on what they will do: If the Soviets will not abandon the new form of the pass they will abandon their own military mission arrangement with the Soviet missions from U. S. headquarters at Frankfurt, French headquarters at Baden-Baden and the British center, Muenchen-Salzuflen.

The new travel passes were issued by the Soviets Feb. 3. Instead of authorizing Western military mission members to travel in the Soviet zone of Germany they referred to the territory of "The German Democratic Republic." The Western military authorities refused to use the passes.

Saturday three Western powers in similar letters told the Soviet military commander in East Germany, Marshal M. V. Zakarov that the documents were unacceptable.

This puts the next play up to the Soviets, and there is some hope in Washington that perhaps they will back down. This optimism is derived from administration belief that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev does not want to inflame East-West relations yet to a point that would assure the fail-

Chessman's Reprieve Stirs Up Furor At Home, Abroad

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Chief Deputy Atty. Gen. Richard R. Rogan said Saturday he stepped into the Caryl Chessman case because he was warned of possible Latin-American reaction if Chessman was executed.

A telephone call from an ex-federal official Rogan said prompted him into actions which played a part in the 11th-hour reprieve of the convict-author Thursday night.

Rogan would not name the man he said called him from Washington. He called him a former high-ranking State Department employe and a long-time personal friend now in private business there.

"He explained the possibilities of incidents during President Eisenhower's trip," Rogan said, "and went over the troubles during Vice President Richard M. Nixon's visit."

Gov. Edmund G. Brown's 60-day stay of execution for the convicted rapist-kidnaper has kicked up a furor in this and many other countries. The California Legislature will be asked, Brown said, to consider abolishing the death penalty.

The call from the unidentified friend, Rogan said, led him to:

1. Telephone George V. Allen, director of the U.S. Information Agency — who was suggested by Rogan's caller.

2. Telephone Gov. Brown late Wednesday and advise him of both conversations.

It was the next night, after getting a telegram from the State Department, that Brown granted the reprieve. Chessman, an inmate of the death house for more than 11 years, was to have died in the gas chamber Friday.

Rogan was assistant to Nelson A. Rockefeller when the New York governor was coordinator of inter-American affairs in the early 1940s.

He said he told Allen of the large amount of Chessman clemency correspondence received from other countries, and in particular from Latin America.

"Allen said to me that any commutation of the sentence would improve relations abroad," Rogan said. "He was not asked, however, for any assistance or interference."

Rogan said he personally opposes the death penalty but his actions in the Chessman case were not influenced by that or by any political factors.

Brown, in granting the stay, said his decision was influenced by a telegram from Roy R. Rubottom Jr., assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs.

Rubottom's telegram reported that grave concern had been expressed by the Uruguayan government over possible demonstrations during President Eisenhower's tour of Latin America.

A State Department spokesman said Rubottom had not received any calls from Rogan or any other California officials about the case.

Rogan said he did not talk to State Department press officer Lincoln White on the matter.

LEMNITZER WARNS OF SOVIET TACTICS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army chief of staff said today Soviet Communists declared three decades ago that they would lull the free world with a peace offensive, then hit it with clenched fists.

Gen Lyman L. Lemnitzer, the Army's top commander, warned that is what the Communists are trying to do. He made the remarks in an address prepared for delivery to the Political Study Club of the District of Columbia.

Lemnitzer said that in 1931 Dimitry Manuilsky, a member of the Central Committee of the Communist party, said war between communism and capitalism was inevitable but, he added Manuilsky said that at that time the Soviet Union was not strong enough, but the time would come in 20 or 30 years.

MISSOURI WOMAN, 100, DIES

SIKESTON, Mo. (AP)—One of Sikeston, Missouri's most familiar figures Mrs. Betty McMullan Matthews, who celebrated her 100th birthday last July 16, died Friday in her Sikeston home.

Mrs. Matthews, more widely known as "Aunt Betty," was the former wife of John Sikes, a son of Sikeston founder William Sikes.

Miss Kauffman Drowned After Beating: Luongo

BOSTON (AP)—The state's top medical witness testified Saturday Lynn Kauffman was apparently beaten, kicked and buffeted about her shipboard cabin. Then, the doctor implied, she was dragged through a porthole and thrown overboard to drown.

"The cause of death was drowning, following the inflicting of multiple blunt force injuries," Boston Medical Examiner Michael A. Luongo testified at Willem Van Rie's first degree murder trial.

Under the guidance of the prosecution, the lanky, crew-cut pathologist, a Harvard University expert in his field, sketched in the state's theory of the beautiful 23-year-old divorcee's death last Sept. 18. Van Rie, 31, handsome Dutch radio operator of the Netherland ship Utrecht, is on trial for his life accused of her murder.

The picture as presented by the state through testimony of Dr. Luongo was like this:

Van Rie became enraged at the lissome American girl who had been his lover on a 44-day voyage from the Orient—the state says they quarreled because she might be pregnant—although she was not.

Admit Love Race Between Identical Twins Was Hoax

BANGOR, Wales (AP) — A pretty Welsh brunette said Saturday night a much-publicized love race between identical twin brothers—to decide which would lead her to the altar—was a hoax.

Jean Gowans, 19, gave this account: "We dreamed the whole thing up. It was a hoax from the start. We wanted to put Bangor on the map but we only expected the story to get in local Welsh papers."

Instead, the announced 104-mile race between Vaughn and Howard Clarke was given worldwide publicity.

The stunt was a climax to Rag week — a time of student high jinks—at the University College of Bangor, where the twins and Miss Gowans are students.

Jean said her father, a local insurance broker, had pressed the three to "own up to things."

"Daddy is fuming," said Jean.

There never was a serious plan for an actual engagement, she added.

The twins called off the race earlier Saturday.

"We are forced to say that the engagement will not now take place and the race is canceled," they announced.

The race started but fizzled out after 30 miles when Vaughn was kidnaped by students from a rival university.

He was reunited with his brother at home later. At first they told reporters they might start the race again over a shorter route. But parental pressure forced them to give up the idea altogether.

Believe Storms Delayed Coors' Ransom Talks

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — Snow pelted again Saturday on the Rocky Mountain foothills area where Adolph Coors III, vanished under mysterious circumstances 11 days ago.

There has been speculation that bad weather has delayed ransom negotiations for the return of the wealthy 44-year-old industrialist. Both police and members of his family have expressed belief Coors was kidnaped.

Ashland And Virginia Phone Merger OK'd

The Illinois Commerce Commission announced Friday it has authorized the Cass County Telephone Co. to purchase the Ashland Telephone Co. and the Cass County Telephone and Telegraph Co.

The new firm owned and controlled by the Gill family will provide dial service to the Virginia-Ashland area.

The Ashland Telephone Co. was purchased for $50,000 and the Cass County Telephone and Telegraph Co. for $100,000 with the transactions to be completed through stock payments.

Until the two exchanges are converted to dial operation current rates will remain in effect.

The Commission in its report said the sale and merger will mean better phone service for the area.

"Thus, here is a way of financing the rebuilding and rehabilitating of the Ashland and Virginia exchanges and their conversion to dial operation, and the elimination of many complaints from subscribers in this area," the report stated.

The Railway Express Agency has filed a petition with the ICC asking authority to discontinue express agency service at New Canton in Pike county.

Granddaughter Of Greenfield Couple Honored

GREENFIELD—Miss June West, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff West, and a senior in the Coral Gables, Fla., high school and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Greer of this city, was one of nine students in Dade County, Fla., selected for National Honors in the annual science talent search for cancer. Research honors go to these pupils for their attempt to unlock the secret of cancer by studying the cells of calf kidneys. The group was recommended as outstanding students for entrance in all colleges as promising students in science.

The census has been started to determine the number of youngsters who will enter kindergarten or first grade in Greenfield this fall. All homerooms have requested student members to provide the names of younger brothers and sisters, relatives and the names of neighbor children in order that the census may be completed.

Adding CHARM to YOUR Home
by Edna C. Gustine

YOU'RE SO RIGHT . . . WITH MAPLE

It's a mistake to think that provincial furnishings and decor are suitable only for the small cottage-type home. They fit equally well into larger and more spacious dwellings. In fact, provincial is right in any size home. For all of you who love its gay, appealing charm, its feeling of friendly informality, there is no better choice.

Today's provincial happily combines the quaint simplicity and picturesqueness of earlier days with the sturdy, practical functionalism we currently demand.

A provincial theme was chosen for the informal family room sketched above. The fireplace wall, composed entirely of natural bricks, provides a starting point for the color scheme. The maple furniture is completely at home in this cozy setting.

The dining group has been conveniently placed near the entrance to the kitchen with traffic lanes left free. When mealtime is over it provides an ideal spot for games. Deep, roomy lounge chairs offer hospitality, invite relaxation and rest. Here is a room setting fashioned and furnished for comfortable, memorable family living.

You have a right to expect style, durability and value with every furniture purchase you make. And we make a special point of being sure that you get all of these when you buy from us. So do come in and let us help you make satisfactory selections. Our welcome mat is always out.

Play Here Tuesday

Diamond Anniversary For Household Science Club

The Jacksonville Household Science club observed its 75th anniversary at its meeting Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 16, at the home of Mrs. Vernon Caine, 310 Lockwood. Assistant hostesses for the Guest Day were Mrs. J. N. Conover, Mrs. John Taylor, Mrs. Hugh Green and Mrs. H. A. Hammitt.

Mrs. John Taylor, vice president, called the meeting to order with a welcome for guests and members and noting briefly the aims and ambitions of the club throughout the years. She mentioned the golden stairway as a "symbol" of club life, with each step representing a club year. Mrs. Taylor paid tribute to the countless members who have given time and talent during the years to keep alive the progressive spirit of the club. Of all attributes the greatest bond has been, Mrs. Taylor noted, the steadfast friendships.

Roll Call From Past

As roll was called each member responded with a household hint that had been taken from club records of years ago. Some accorded much amusement and were clearly irrelevant to modern times. From the year 1898 a member told how a woman might dress "beautifully" on one hundred dollars a year; from 1908, a "snappy" Reo touring car was available for $1,000.

Mrs. Taylor presented Mrs. Hugh Green, program chairman. After greeting guests Mrs. Green read an original poem written by Mrs. J. N. Conover in commemoration of the diamond anniversary.

Mrs. Green then presented Mrs. Louisa Strong who most charmingly rendered several vocal selections with Miss Mahala McGehee as her accompanist.

Diamond Theme

After the musical portion of the program Mrs. Green presented Russel Vernor, from Duncan and Vernor Jewelers. Mr. Vernor spoke on "Diamonds," the stone's significance, endurance and symbols that set the precious stone apart from all others. A film, "A Diamond is Forever," closed that portion of the program and a synthetic stone display was enjoyed.

Following the program guests and members were invited to the spacious dining room where delicious refreshments were served with Mrs. J. N. Conover and Mrs. John Taylor presiding.

The theme, "Golden Stairway and Diamond Anniversary," was beautifully carried out in appointments. The table centerpiece was a miniature golden stairway, crested with gold flowers with each stairstep edged with synthetic diamonds and flanked with gold candles in magnificent candelabra.

The refreshments also kept close to the theme: dainty sandwiches, ice cream and individual gold cakes in diamond shape beautifully decorated with the color of the date with the numeral "75" in the ice cream.

At the conclusion of the outstanding program each guest was presented a club program also decorated with a synthetic diamond.

New Medicine Tuesday Club Program Topic

Tuesday Club met the afternoon of Feb. 16 at the home of Mrs. James Armitage, 9 Jones Pl.

Mrs. Ralph Woods opened the meeting by reading a poem, "Lovely Things." Mrs. Willard Cody, program chairman, presented Mrs. Ray Steinheimer who gave an interesting and informative paper on "What's New in Medicine?" The first part dealt with coronary diseases. Mrs. Steinheimer named causes contributing to coronary attacks and described the various kinds. She pointed out results of intensive studies to prevent such attacks.

The speaker told of new, successful technique being used in the treatment of cancer. She gave much credit to the vast research program being carried on by some 6,000 scientists supported by fund contributions.

Mrs. Steinheimer next spoke of the problem of aiding mentally retarded children. She mentioned factors that cause mental retardation. She pointed out the accomplishments of physiologists and biochemists of note in Oslo, Norway, and London, England, as well as in the United States. The speaker mentioned the role diet can play in restoring a retarded child to normal and stressed importance of understanding and love.

Following the program a social hour was enjoyed. Lovely refreshments, following the Washington birthday motif, were served by the hostess.

Mrs. Hugh Green Delights South Side Circle

Mrs. Harrison Weaver entertained the South Side Circle Friday, Feb. 19, at the Triple Flame Steak House, west of the city. There were 14 present.

Mrs. Ethel Strawn, president, conducted the business meeting after which Mrs. E. C. Slaughter, program chairman, presented Mrs. C. R. Short, program leader. Mrs. Short introduced her daughter, Mrs. Hugh Green, who gave the program on the subject, "Our Poor Music Makers." She opened her talk with the quotation, "To be a musician one must be born poor." This would seem to be borne out by the lives of many musicians in the past. Mrs. Green spoke of many, among them Mozart, so poor all his life that his funeral expenses even were only $3.06 with only six people attending.

Victor Herbert, who on arrival in this country, had but one shirt; Carrie Jacobs Bond, Harris, Schubert, Brahms and others were mentioned as desperately poor, but persisting in their efforts and not daunted by circumstances. Today they are acclaimed great and their music sets the highest standards.

Mrs. Green interspersed her talk by singing some of old-time favorites. Circle members expressed thanks to Mrs. Green for so interesting and entertaining a program. Following adjournment delicious refreshments were provided by Mrs. Weaver.

CHICAGO (AP) — Buying of butcher hogs on shipper account was light again this week but receipts continued small and prices were strong to 50 cents higher with weights over 260 lbs showing the extreme advance. Sows were 25 to 50 cents lower.

The slackened shipper demand was related to heavier marketings of new crop hogs at other terminals near processing plants. Only 13,000 head were shipped out of Chicago this week for slaughter elsewhere, the smallest volume since September.

Slaughter steer prices were generally steady to 50 cents lower but offerings grading average choice and below and weighing upwards from 1,325 lbs were as much as $1.50 lower.

The week's supply was the smallest since October and the percentage of choice and prime grades also was smaller while offerings of good grade were somewhat more liberal.

The market for slaughter lambs was steady to 25 cents lower as the sheep supply increased about 60 per cent from the previous week and consisted mainly of good and choice wooled slaughter lambs.

New York Stock Market

By ED MORSE
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market's prolonged 1960 decline reached a selling climax this week and prices rebounded vigorously from their lowest levels in more than a year.

The long-awaited shakeout occurred Wednesday when stocks were battered down under intense selling pressure accompanied by a late ticker tape. The rebound got under way with the tape still late. Toward the end of the day a renewed buying drive, again accompanied by a late ticker tape, achieved the first of three days of rising prices.

Wall Streeters attributed the climax to technical reasons rather than to news. As pessimism reached its depths early Wednesday, many traders and investors dumped stocks at prices attractive to those on the sidelines with cash in hand waiting for "bargains."

The stock market declined sharply Monday and Tuesday. In the crucial Wednesday session volume soared to 4,210,000 shares, the biggest since May 9, 1959.

The Dow Jones industrial average this week rose 6.22 to 628.45.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 2.10 to 218.50.

Turnover for the week rose to 17,290,350 shares from 13,483,960 the week before and was the biggest since the week ended Jan. 16 when volume was 17,630,696 shares.

Gainers outnumbered losers by 749 to 495. New 1959-'60 lows totaled 174 and new highs 21.

Most active issues on the New York Stock Exchange was Studebaker-Packard (when-issued), unchanged at 12⅜ on 575,900 shares. Most active on the American Stock Exchange was Siboney-Caribbean Petroleum, unchanged at ⅝ on 169,700 shares.

The vigorous rebound of the stock market brought an abrupt end to a six-week rally of U.S. government bonds. Corporate bonds continued to edge higher on balance but the tone was anything but firm.

The government bond rally saw both intermediate and long range issues improve almost four points from record lows around the first of the year. The rally blossomed during last month and a half as investors, seeking a safer haven for their funds, crossed over from stocks to bonds. A reverse tide of investors switching from bonds back into stocks became evident this week.

MOST GRAINS LOST IN WEEK'S SELLING

By GIL MAYO
AP Business News Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Rallies were scarce and short lived in the grain futures market this week and nearly all contracts showed net losses.

Rye was the major exception, showing small to moderate gains on all deliveries. Corn and soybeans with the steepest losses ended the week again near their lows for the season. At one time during the week, March, May and July soybeans were at or below their previous minimum prices.

Corn was within a cent or so of its low on all months. Setbacks in that grain and soybeans ranged out to more than 1¼ cents in spots. However, soybeans closed with some recovery posted while corn was near the bottom for the week.

Brokers ascribed the weakness mainly to continued meager commercial demand and a little larger volume of hedge selling. Specifically, soybeans bucked a still weakening market most of the time for soybean oil and rather narrowly undulating prices for soybean meal.

Soybean oil hit a succession of new lows in almost 20 years while soybean meal appeared to have yielded ground to corn as a livestock feed.

Reports that one major soybean processor had ceased its crushing operations and that another was considering curtailment of operations had a steadying effect on the by-products but a bearish influence on soybeans themselves.

Trade advices said indications were that livestock feeders had swapped over to heavier usage of the large stocks of high moisture corn which is too wet for long-term storage or marketing.

Transactions were dull most of the time all week. On Friday, however, wheat derived some support from the most significant export business in a month and prices firmed up slightly. Poland and Uruguay took a total of five million bushels of soft red and hard yellow wheat while the United Arab Republic called for offers on 30,000 tons of flour and 1,200,000 bushels of wheat.

At the end of the week, wheat was ½ cent a bushel higher to 1 cent lower, March $1.99¾; corn ½-1¼ lower, March $1.12¼; oats 1¼ lower to ¼ higher, March 73⅜-¾; rye unchanged to 1¼ higher, March $1.25; soybeans ½-1¾ lower, March $2.12¼-⅜.

Major Storm Aims Wrath At Illinois

inches of snow covered mountains in western counties of the state.

Relief was seen Saturday afternoon when the winds which had hit 50 to 60 miles an hour over sections of New York and Pennsylvania began tapering off. Temperatures across the storm area were generally below freezing.

The Western storm hurled a 6-inch snow blanket across portions of Kansas and menaced traffic with slickened highways. Hazardous driving conditions were predicted for eastern Colorado, the Oklahoma and Texas Panhandles and south-central Nebraska.

Heavy snow was expected to extend northeastward across the Middle Mississippi Valley and into the Great Lakes region by Sunday. The Weather Bureau said it would miss the South, which was swept by two severe winter storms in a week.

he knelt on her chest as the pummeling continued. He stomped on her with his feet. And he battered her 95-pound body across her shipboard cabin, sending her reeling against one object after another.

Finally, the girl dropped unconscious at his feet. Panicky, thinking her dead, Van Rie hoisted her through a port hole in her cabin and on to the Utrecht's deck. There he cast her overboard into the darkness of Boston Harbor.

Senseless from her wounds, the girl drowned in less than 15 minutes.

The defense has medical experts of its own waiting to testify that Lynn could have been knocked unconscious and battered in an accidental or suicidal plunge 40 feet from the deck of the Utrecht to the harbor waters. It is expected to suggest that on the way down she may have struck the ship's side or gangplank lashed beneath her cabin.

Repeatedly, on cross-examination, defense attorney Walter Powers Jr. asked Dr. Luongo, injury by injury, whether they could have been caused by a fall in water from a height. In most cases Dr. Luongo agreed it was possible. But he said the girl's chest and head injuries could hardly have resulted from a single fall.

The ticket was issued after the Engle auto was reportedly involved in a collision at the South Main-College Avenue intersection. City officers Chapman and Cottingham were in charge of the case.

Big O Held To 14 Points In Cincinnati Win

HOUSTON (AP) — Oscar Robertson was held to 14 points Saturday night but Paul Hogue, 6-foot-9 sophomore, came through with a surprising 22 points to lead Cincinnati, the nation's No. 1 team, to a 57-47 Missouri Valley Conference victory over Houston.

Hogue, from Knoxville, Tenn., had scored no more than 17 points in previous games but he got 12 out of the first 15 points for Cincinnati and came back again midway in the second half when a Houston rally had cut the Cincinnati lead to three.

Hoosiers Topple Iowa For Seventh Straight Win

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP)—Indiana held off a scrappy but inept Iowa team and extended its Big Ten basketball winning streak to seven games Saturday night by bumping the Hawkeyes 79-64.

The second-place Hoosiers, coming here with a 6-3 record, had visions of gaining at least a share of the title with high-riding Ohio State. But that hope was dimmed when the undefeated Buckeyes beat Michigan State 84-83 at East Lansing.

Iowa had the same trouble that cost the Hawks their previous five conference games in a row. They had plenty of chances from the field but missed a large share of their shots. The Hoosiers had little such difficulty.

Pair Of Sophs Lead Purdue To 75-70 Decision

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Sophomores Bob Kehrt and Jerry Berkshire led Purdue to a 75-70 Big Ten basketball victory over Northwestern Saturday nite.

The triumph lifted Purdue (6-5) into fourth place in the conference. Northwestern (5-5) dropped into a tie for fifth.

Kehrt kept the Boilermakers in contention in the first half, which ended with Northwestern leading 39-34. In the second half Berkshire helped Purdue fashion a nine-point advantage which Northwestern couldn't overcome.

Kehrt scored 20 points and Berkshire added 19, while Purdue's leading scorer, Terry Dischinger, was held to 15. Bill Cacciatore led Northwestern with 20.

Northwestern led 21-9 in the first half before Kehrt came in and scored five of six attempts on shots of 25 feet or more. Berkshire then scored 14 of his points in the second half.

In the 1956 presidential election, a total of 62,027,040 votes were cast.

ure of the summit conference in May.

Estimates of the importance of the military missions vary. Some officials here said they are useful to both sides in keeping check on military activities throughout Germany. In this sense the missions contribute to East-West stability and perhaps even help avoid what Secretary of State Christian A. Herter calls the increasing danger of war by discrimination.

What is more important, however, is that if the Western powers do abandon the military mission system the action will be the result not of free choice but of Soviet pressure.

Sunbleached bones identified tentatively as those of Toner, Lamotte, Adams, 1st Lt. William I. Hatton of Queens, N.Y., and 2nd Lt. D. P. Hayes of Lee's Summit, Mo., were found last week by an exploration team of the British Petroleum Co.

They died about 85 miles north of the spot where their Liberator bomber had glided unmanned to an almost perfect belly landing on the desert sand nearly 17 years ago. Discovery of the plane by a team of British geologists last May had set off intensive searches to learn the fate of the crew.

No trace has been found of Lt. Woravka or Shelly, Ripslinger and Moore, the three sergeants who left the main party to go in search of help. Investigators of a U.S. Army mortuary team said they are certain the remains of those four will not be found in the immediate area.

The fuselage of the "Lady Be Good" was undamaged in its landing. Its radio was still intact and its water jugs were still filled when the geologists found it. Air officials said the crewmen probably would have survived if they had stayed aboard, or had found the plane after bailing out.

FAN BREEZES

BY STAN SPOTTS

Journal Courier Sports Editor

Ernie Hoff, former Ashland coach and a wrestling buddy of Tom Carmody, said he's heard so much about Bradley's famed press that he decided to go and see it. Hoff went to Peoria and was amazed at what he saw. He said the press was no different than those employed by other teams with the only exception being the Braves knock the tar out of the men trying to get the ball down court and that they get away with it. It seems Bradley also gets away with it when playing out of town.

"When Winstead calls in to get the score, tell him to send the 1st place PMSC Conference championship trophy special delivery to me." That was Coach George Danhaus' statement following Bluffs' victory over Triopia. The win threw the conference championship into a three-way tie and that's the way it'll remain as conference play has concluded. "Well, we backed into it this year didn't we," Winstead stated when he heard the final outcome. To me it ended fairly as Danhaus will verify. Routt beat Bluffs and Triopia defeated the Rockets. The Bluffs mentor has one big love with football and has never cared much for the round-ball sport—that is until this year. His cagers have compiled an impressive record and he's done a good job with the Bluejays. A winning season can sway a coach and the opinion he may of had about the game.

Joe Jurkanin, Jerseyville football coach, is seeking a game for Friday, October 28, 1960—preferably away from home. He wants to fill this date as soon as possible. Coach Dick Hamann of the Carrollton Hawks has some open basketball dates next season and any interested teams may write or call Carrollton High School.

Center Bob Bond of the New Berlin Pretzels was carrying his arm around in a sling this week following New Berlin's skirmish with Pleasant Plains. Bond says the Cardinals like to play rough and that he didn't mind mixing it up a little when teams play that way. There were no breaks, for which coach Bill Hovey was thankful, and he'll give the arm a little rest before New Berlin plays in the opening game of the JHS regional tournament, Tuesday night, March 1.

Three-cushion billiard players from Chicago and other cities in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin—28 in number, Sunday will attempt to qualify for eight berths in the Interstate Open tournament which starts Monday at Randolph Recreations, 29 W. Randolph street. Eddie Miller, tournament director, announced that the 28 players will form four brackets of seven players each, with two emerging from each bracket to enter the round-robin starting Monday at 1:30 p.m. Five matches will be played daily—1:30, 3:30, 5:30, 7:30 and 9:30 throughout the week with the tourney championship being determined Saturday night. From Illinois—Bill Ameen, Springfield; Harry Birdsell, Jacksonville; Louis Lujac, Waukegan; Marvin Wells, Sycamore, and Bill Hawkins and Don Tozer of Decatur, Ill.

Coach Paul Keller of Jonathan Turner's Devils is already enthused over next year's prospects as his seventh graders compiled a 12-1 record this season. The squad has a pair of six-footers in Andrews and Bone. Incidentally, young Bone is about an inch and a half taller than Dave was at this age and this is not only good news for Keller, it's also music to the ears for Crimson followers. The two tall youngsters are well coordinated for their age and if they keep developing and improving, they'll be heard from in the near future. The eighth grade team closed its season Friday night with a victory over Hillsboro. The boys lost five of their first seven starts but bounced back to win 10 of their last 11 starts. Jolly good show, Devils, and congratulations to you and Paul.

— O —

Next year, George Florence and Don Carter, two strapping youngsters graduating from Turner this spring, embark on their high school careers and they should more than hold their own in football and basketball. By the time Al Rosenberger's freshman crop become juniors and seniors, JHS should be plenty tough. The freshmen are Yates, Massey, Smith, Batty, Henderson, Heidinger, DeFreitas, Skipworth, Scholes, Bourn and Spangenberg. With Carter, Florence, Daniel, Broome and several others coming into high school next fall and Bone and Andrews the following season, then JHS has some promising material coming on.

— O —

While I'm on grade school material, it would be a good idea to look into Routt's future. Our Saviour's has plenty of good talent to offer the Rockets. The names of Ferry, Fitzpatrick, Baulos, Carroll, Reside, McGinnis and Bagale are all familiar. Five of the promising players have height in addition to ability. The heavyweights have lost only two games this season while the lightweights are undefeated in 15 starts and have earned a trip to the state finals with a sectional triumph over Rochester Thursday night.

— O —

After watching the officiating in the Jacksonville-Feitshans game Friday night, I'm convinced all the more that basketball officials should be required to attend a two or three week school. Friday night's calls were strictly lousy and left a lot to be desired. Indirectly, I'm not blaming officials as I believe the rule-makers are at fault. Being an official isn't easy, especially in basketball, but an official, no matter what sport it may be, has to rely on his judgement to make a call. The basketball rule book makes it difficult to work a game as the many infractions can be interpreted differently by each official. I'm sure that all the fans would appreciate uniformity and consistency when the whistle blows. If an official has no judgement and should the game ever be given back to the players, then it shouldn't be so easy to get a license. Some officials are like poor drivers, people often ask, "What department store issued your license?"

— O —

No matter how poorly it was, the officiating didn't defeat the Crimsons. They seem to be their own worst enemy as they'll play good ball for a half or three quarters and then completely fold in the final half or fourth quarter. When the Crimsons are in contention for a victory, it seems they're afraid they're going to win and then they blow sky high with bad passes, which has been their downfall all season. At times they look unbeatable and even spectacular but then they'll turn around and give a complete reversal of this form and quite naturally lose. The odd thing about this season, other than the three wins and 16 losses, has been at home. JHS hasn't won a game at home this year and most clubs are tough on their own floor. A few fans are picking them to win their own Regional and they could do it by that time if they get over the habit of throwing the ball away. Forget the fancy passes, the past, and etc., guys, as we know you've had a rugged schedule this season. Just concentrate on your game and think about showing a few people just what you've learned from all of this. Records mean very little once Regional time rolls around.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Cain Hoy Stable's Bald Eagle came flying into the stretch, overtook the leaders, and went on to win the $126,000 Widener Handicap Saturday and set a new track record.

A Hialeah crowd of 35,014 made Bald Eagle the 6-5 favorite over Sword Dancer. The five-year-old son of Nasrullah ran the mile and a quarter in 1:59 3-5 to shatter the old mark of 2:01 set by El Mono in 1948.

Calumet Farm's On-And-On finished second, three quarters of a length back. Ada L. Rice's Talent Show was third.

Bald Eagle, second to On-And-On in the recent McLennan, was back in the pack early in the running of this 23rd Widener but moved to third as they turned for home and had plenty left to overtake On-And-On and Day Court in the stretch.

Bald Eagle, carrying 123 pounds with Manuel Ycaza up, paid $4.70, $2.60 and $2.40.

Betting on the nationally televised (NBC) race was a thumping $445,920, far above the old Hialeah record set on Widener Day in 1956 at $332,660.

Former President Harry S. Truman appeared briefly in the winner's circle while the trophy was being presented to Harry Guggenheim of New York, owner of Cain Hoy Stable, by George D. Widener, nephew of the late Joseph E. Widener for whom the race was named.

Elliott Takes It Easy And Turns In 4-Minute Mile

MELBOURNE (AP)—Herb Elliott, perhaps the only miler in the world who can take it easy and do 4 minutes flat, did just that Saturday under a blazing sun for the Victorian Championship.

The lean, superbly conditioned Aussie didn't take the lead until the front stretch of the third lap, then finished with a 55-second fourth quarter that put him 50 yards ahead of the field at the tape.

Merv Lincoln, an old rival who has been ailing lately, finished even farther back. John Murray was second in 4:07.2.

Elliott, the world record holder at 3:54.5, was hardly puffing afterward.

Pleasant Hill Raps Perry, 76-54

PLEASANT HILL—The Wolves won from the Perry Pioneers Saturday night as they downed the visitors by a 76-54 score. The Pleasant Hill victory now puts their record at 9 wins and 12 losses for the season.

The Wolves started off with a press in the first quarter, but after little success with it, dropped it. Gary Capps and Ronnie Richards paced the winners as Capps put through 27 tallies on 12 field shots and 3 charity, and Richards contributed 24 markers via a 9 and 6 situation.

The Pioneers had Smith and Whitaker as the big men with Smith collecting 14 and Whitaker 13 for the evening.

Play was pretty much dominated by the Cardinals as they took the lead at the end of the first quarter by a 12 point margin, 24-12, and they maintained a steady margin for the rest of the game. In Pike County Conference play the Pleasant Hill five now stand at 4 wins and 2 losses, which puts them in the second place position.

Roberson Smashes World Indoor Broad Jump Mark

By ED CORRIGAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Al Lawrence, Bo Roberson and Hal Connolly led an assault on world indoor records at the National AAU Track and Field Championships Saturday night.

Lawrence chopped the three-mile record down to 13:26.4. Roberson erased the oldest mark in the books with a 25-9½ broad jump and Connolly, the Santa Monica, Calif., school teacher, shattered the standard for the 35-pound weight throw with a mighty heave of 71 feet, 2½ inches.

Lawrence, who attends the University of Houston, but is an Australian and will run for the Aussies in the Olympics, cut a fantastic 10.6 seconds off the world record of 13:37 set by Bill Dellinger in this same meet last year.

Lawrence is 27 years old and stands 5-foot-7. He weighs only 128 pounds.

Roberson smashed Jesse Owens' quarter century-old world indoor broad jump record of 25-9. It was set in this same meet on Feb. 23, 1935.

Roberson, an ex-Cornell football player and now officer at Fort Lee, Va., still has a long way to go before he can challenge Owen's outdoor broad jump record of 26-8¼ which also was set in 1935.

The weight throw record by the 28-year old English teacher from Santa Monica, Calif. cracked another "impossible" barrier in track and field, just like the four-minute mile and the 60-foot shot-put.

Thus, just 11 years after Army's Jim Sholtz became the world's first 60-footer, Connolly became the first weight-thrower to get over 70 feet.

The listed world record is 66-2¾, set in this meet last year by Bob Backus of the New York Athletic Club.

Backus, who had won the title the past six years, had 68-2¾.

Police said the train smashed into the car near the rear, spun it around and carried it about 35 yards. Locke is believed to have been in the back seat of the car. A companion escaped serious injuries.

Illinois won every event except the pole vault in which it had no entries.

McKinley And Buchholz Lead Way In National

NEW YORK (AP) — Chuck McKinley and Earl Buchholz, 19-year U.S. Davis Cuppers from Missouri, led the way into the semifinals of the National Indoor tennis championships Saturday with amazing upsets.

McKinley fought off three set points to defeat Ron Holmberg of Brooklyn 6-8, 6-1, 7-5. Buchholz ousted Neale Fraser, Australia's one-man Davis Cup gang, and No. 1 among the foreign seeds, 5-7, 11-9, 6-4.

In Sunday's semifinals, McKinley, who resides in St. Ann, Mo., a St. Louis suburb, will meet Dick Savitt of New York, the top-seeded American and two-time winner of the tournament.

Buchholz, who comes from St. Louis, goes against his Cup mate, Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio.

Bradley Coasts To 69-39 Victory

DENTON, Tex. (AP) — Bradley University, the nation's second ranked team, outshot and outran North Texas State Saturday night for a 69-39 Missouri Valley Conference victory.

It was a comparatively low scoring game, partially because of North Texas' efforts to control the ball and play for the best shot.

The Eagles took only 18 shots in the first half but hit just one-third of them and trailed 15-30 at intermission.

The Braves hit 51.7 per cent from the field throughout the game. North Texas wound up hitting only 26.4 per cent.

Bradley spread its scoring evenly with four men shooting between 13 and 17 points. Chet Walker was the high man.

The Eagles' top scorer was Darrell Rietzel with 12.

ILLINOIS TEAMS ELIGIBLE

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The Missouri State men's senior tournament of the National Basketball Congress will be held the weekends of March 11 and 18 at the Tandy and Gamble recreation centers here, it was announced Saturday.

Initial Steps Toward Deciding State Champ Will Be Taken Monday

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—The first steps toward deciding an Illinois high school basketball champion will be taken Monday with the opening of five district tournaments downstate.

Of the 686 downstate schools in the running for the title, 249 of the smaller ones fight it out among themselves in 44 district meets for berths in the regional tourneys.

All of them are looking for the magic like that which carried tiny Hebron all the way from the district title to a state championship in 1952.

In 60 of these regional affairs, the district winners will join 437 larger schools, starting play Feb. 29.

After the five district meets start Monday, 15 more get under way Tuesday. These include the Batavia district, where the little seven title winner, Geneva, shines; Earlville, where Serena is placed; Ohio, boasting Bureau as one of the better "Little Davids;" Toluca, the apparent king pin in its own district; and Sumner, a district listing Hutsonville, one of the better Eastern Illinois outfits.

Thirteen more districts step off Wednesday, including the Hinckley meet which shows off Shabbona as a standout.

The final districts wait until Thursday to begin.

All district meets wind up by Friday.

Regional tourneys start a week from Monday and conclude March 4.

Sectionals run from March 9 to 11, with the Chicago leader stepping into the competition. Wind-up games are March 15 and March 18-19.

Springfield is the defending champion.

Michigan State Gives Fourth Ranked Bucks A Real Scare, 84-83

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Ohio State, fourth ranked nationally, had to fight down to the last second Saturday night to edge Michigan State 84-83 and continue a headlong rush toward the Big Ten basketball title.

The Buckeyes, 19-2 overall, now have won 11 straight in Big Ten play. If they sweep 14 games, they will be the first league team since the 1942-43 Illinois "Whiz Kids" to go undefeated.

Defending conference champ Michigan State pressed and fought all the way, and trailed only by a point at the half, 46-45.

Ohio State had an 82-79 lead with 51 seconds left but Lance Olson stole the ball for MSU and cut the lead to 82-81 with 21 seconds left.

Michigan State's Horace Walker got in one final basket in the last seven seconds to account for the final score.

The game was a scoring duel all the way between Jerry Lucas, 6-foot-8 sophomore, and Walker, 6-foot-3 senior. Lucas outscored Walker, 28 to 23 points.

The loss gave Michigan State a 5-6 conference and 10-8 overall record.

ISD Tigers Defeated By Indiana Deaf, 46-44

INDIANAPOLIS — The host Indiana Deaf aggregation scored twice in a delayed 30 seconds to hand Illinois School for Deaf Tigers a 46-44 loss here Saturday night.

With the issue in doubt, the timer forgot to start the clock twice and this enabled Indiana to annex its 12th victory against seven losses.

The Tigers trailed most of the way after knotting the score at 4-all in the first quarter. ISD began closing the gap in the final two minutes of play and caught up with 30 seconds to play.

The loss was ISD's ninth in 22 outings.

Illinois Deaf committed only four fouls in the game and Indiana received only three free throws. The winners were guilty of 10 fouls.

Gophers Hand Michigan 10th Loop Setback

Minnesota Has Go In 87-61 Win

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Ron Johnson pumped in 10 field goals in 13 tries against defenseless Michigan and Minnesota heaped new misery on the tail-end Wolverines with an 87-61 Big Ten basketball victory Saturday.

The defeat was Michigan's 10th in a winless Big Ten season and its 17th in 20 games overall. Minnesota, struggling for second place in the conference, pushed its record to 8-4.

Although badly out-reached and out-gunned, Michigan made a scrap of it through the first half before Johnson and Paul Lehman closed the gates on any further Wolverine ambitions early in the second half.

Johnson, whose bullseye shooting Satuday ran his string to 35 hits in 48 field goal attempts over the last three games, finished with 26 points. Lehman and Dick Erickson each had 13.

Terry Miller topped the Wolverines with 13, and John Tidwell and Lovell Farris each had 12. The Wolverines had miserable luck from the field. Tidwell, their leading scorer, hit only six of 21 attempts and Farris three of 19.

Still, Michigan led for a few minutes in the first half and was behind only 38-32 at intermission.

Johnson and Lehman thrust Minnesota into a 57-46 advantage eight minutes deep in the second half, and the margin mounted steadily thereafter.

The Gophers, with a weaving offense that virtually discarded the standard jump shot, hit 57 per cent of their shots. Michigan had 30 per cent.

January Garners Lead, Fairfield Has 207 At Tucson

By MURRAY SINCLAIR

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Don January dropped a birdie on the last hole Saturday to take a one stroke lead in the $20,000 Tucson Open Golf Tournament with a 54-hole total of 202, eight under par.

January's 225-yard wood shot to the green left him 25 feet from the hole. He two-putted for his birdie four and 68.

E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, the host pro for the 6,413-yard, par 70 El Rio Course, blazed home in a five-under-par 65 for a 203 total and second place.

Dave Marr, Cedarhurst, N. Y., the 36-hole leader, had been in a duel with January all afternoon. They came to the last green tied. Marr took a bogey six on the hole for the one-over-par 71 and a total of 204.

Both January and Marr needed pars to tie with the veteran Harrison, who was already in the clubhouse. Marr's approach was headed for a trap when it rolled into a crowd of spectators and stopped on the fairway. His chip went over the green and he needed three putts.

Bob Goalby, Crystal River, Fla., is three strokes off the pace with 205.

Charles Sifford, Negro star from Los Angeles; Bob Harris, Winnetka, Ill., and Gay Brewer Jr., Crystal River, were tied with 206s.

January, of Denver, Colo., hasn't won a PGA scheduled tournament since his rookie year in 1956 when he captured the Dallas Centennial.

Don Fairfield of Jacksonville, Ill., was in a four-way tie at 207.

Chuck Malchaski of Addison, Ill., and six others were tied for 25th place with totals of 210.

Brabham, Moss Head Top Field In Havana Prix

HAVANA (AP) — Jack Brabham, Australia's world champion and Stirling Moss of England head a strong field that will bring back grand prix auto racing to Havana Feb. 28.

Racing officials have announced Brabham will drive a Cooper Monaco and Moss an experimental Maserati 2.8 in the 208-mile Gran Premio de Libertad over a new course at the Camp Liberty airfield.

It will be Cuba's first grand prix race since the 1958 event came to a sudden, tragic end. That race was halted after a car driven by Garcia Cifuentes skidded on an oil slick curve on the course laid out on the Malecon Boulevard in the heart of Havana. It plunged into the crowd, killing six and injuring 32.

A physical culture director, Iverson ran a health improvement salon in Chicago. He was a member of the Blackhawk coaching staff in the 30s and coached championship hockey teams at the University of Minnesota during the 1920s.

YANKEE SIGNERS

Passing Honors To Unitas And Charley Conerly

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Top passing honors in the 1959 National Football League season were divided among the New York Giants, their quarterback, Charley Conerly, and quarterback Johnny Unitas of the Champion Baltimore Colts.

Conerly had the highest average gain per passing attempt 8.79 yards. The Giants led as a team with 8.37.

Unitas had the most yards gained, 2,899, the most touchdown tosses, 32, and the greatest number of completions, 193.

Norm Van Brocklin of Philadelphia and Billy Wade of Los Angeles compiled the highest completion average, 58.6.

14 NATIONS REPRESENTED

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Fourteen nations will be represented in the 12th annual Good Neighbor Tennis Championships starting here Tuesday.

Four seeded players in the men's draw of 32 are Neale Fraser and Roy Emerson of Australia, Ulf Schmidt of Sweden and Mike Davies of Great Britain. Fraser, Emerson and Schmidt are the three top seeds in the U.S. National Indoors Championships ending Monday in New York.

Wisconsin Pulls Away In 2nd Half

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Wisconsin's basketball squad, cellar dweller in the Big Ten conference most of the season, upset Illinois Saturday 75-63.

Tom Hughbanks sank 17 points to lead the Badgers to their second league victory in a row and their second triumph in 10 starts. The Badgers had not won two games in a row in more than two years. Four teammates scored in double figures. Govoner Vaughn, one of the top scorers in the conference, hit 17 points to lead Illinois, now 4-6.

Wisconsin led most of the first half, thanks to accurate outside shooting, but an Illini fast break that clicked just before the intermission tied it up at 28-28 at halftime. The Badgers were sweeping the boards but could sink only 30 per cent of their shots in the first period. The second half was a different story. Aided by a lightning fast break and with balanced scoring, Wisconsin pulled away to a surprising 59-43 edge midway in the last half and held the upper hand the rest of the way.

The Badgers, who cashed in against Iowa with an effective shifting zone defense, played man-for-man against the Illini.

Wisconsin shot 40 per cent and Illinois 45.

Combined German Team Wrecks U.S. Hopes In Women's Downhill Race

By TED SMITS
Associated Press Sports Editor

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (AP)—The combined German team wrecked U.S. hopes in the women's downhill ski race Saturday and captured two gold medals in a surprise show of strength in the Eighth Winter Olympic Games.

Heidi Beibl, an 18-year-old fraulein from West Germany, sped down the mile and one-eighth course in 1 minute, 37.6 seconds to nose out the No. 1 American hope, Penny Pitou of Gilford, N.H., who clocked 1:38.6.

To add to the American disappointment, Betsy Snite of Norwhich, Vt., Penny's roommate and ranked with her as one of the world's best took a bad spill and had to be helped from the course.

The United States collected an unexpected bronze medal in the 500-meter speed skating, won by Mrs. Helga Haase, a 25-year-old housewife from Communist East Germany. Mrs. Haase won in 45.9 seconds, shading Natalija Denchenko of Russia, :46 flat, and Jeanne Ashworth of Wilmington, Mass., a 21-year-old Tufts College student who was third in :46.1.

The Soviet Union scored a 1-2-3-4 sweep in the ladies 10-kilometer (6 1-5 miles) ski race and jumped into a commanding lead in the battle for unofficial team honors. The Russians, with five events complete, have a total of 38½ points compared with 27 for second place Germany, 19 for Sweden and 13 each for the United States and Canada. Points are based on 10 for first, 5 for second, 4 for third, 3 for fourth, 2 for fifth and 1 for sixth.

Marija Gusakova, a 29-year-old Leningrad dressmaker, led the strong Russian delegation in the cross-country, winning in 39 minutes, 49 seconds.

At the Blyth Arena, Carol Heiss of Ozone Park, N.Y., the world's figure skating queen, took the first steps toward her conceded Olympic title. She went through the first two of her six compulsory figures almost flawlessly. She skates for the championship next Tuesday.

Miss Heiss took a commanding lead with an aggregate of 262.8 points. Teammate Barbara Roles of Temple City, Calif., was second with 246.9.

CCI SWIMMING TITLE TO CENTRAL

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. (AP)—North Central captured its 12th successive College Conference of Illinois swimming title Saturday, taking 10 of 11 firsts in Augustana's pool.

North Central scored 90 points, followed by Augustana with 31 and Illinois Wesleyan with 17. Only three schools competed.

North Central's Dick Blick won three events, the 100-, 440- and 220-yard freestyle races. A double winner was North Central's Bob Alix, who took the 160 individual medley and 200 butterfly.

The champion Cardinals set six new conference records.

Make Lab Tests Of Clothing Found In Search For Slayers

Articles of clothing which may have been worn by the slayers of Levi Gray, 67, who was shot to death at his home on North West street last Tuesday, have been taken to the Illinois crime laboratory at Springfield for tests.

A hat, cap, trousers and jacket were taken to Springfield Saturday by Capt. Wilbur Stafford and Sgt. Ernest Smith. The garments were located at a local cleaning establishment where they had been left for cleaning.

The clothing had been tossed along State Route 100, east of Meredosia, and was picked up by a motorist. Stains resembling blood were found on the jacket.

Chief of Police Charles P. Runkel said results of the tests will not be known until sometime this week.

Another development in the investigation occurred Saturday when Mrs. Deniful (Dimple) Green, 55, a roomer in the Gray home, was taken to Springfield to view several prisoners in the police lineup. She said she did not identify any of the men.

Gray was shot in the back of his neck and shoulders with a .38 caliber revolver, the bullet ranging down into the region of the heart. The fact that he had several hundred dollars in his pockets, and more cash hidden in the house, led officers to believe that robbery was the motive, probably when he resisted the armed pair.

The assailants were described by Mrs. Green as two colored men, who were strangers to her.

Winchester Kiwanians Plan Farmers' Night

By Dorothy Sauer
(Winchester Correspondent)
(Telephone Pioneer 2-3439)

WINCHESTER — Farmers of the community will be the invited guests of the Winchester Kiwanis Club members on Tuesday evening, February 23, commencing with a 6:30 o'clock dinner served at the Hotel Winchester.

John J. Lacey of the Illinois Agricultural Association and the National Farm Bureau Federation, will be the guest speaker for the evening. The public is invited to hear Mr. Lacey who is a nationally known speaker on the subject of inflation. Mr. Lacey's speech will commence at 7:00 p.m. following the regular weekly meeting of the club.

He just recently retired as Secretary of Information for the Illinois Agricultural Association after having been in agricultural work nearly all his life. Born on a farm in Will County, he was graduated from the University of Illinois with a Bachelor of Science degree in Agriculture in 1917. He taught Vocational Agriculture in Illinois and served as county agent in Indiana before entering Farm Journalism in 1923.

After a year as Farm Editor of the Huntington (Indiana) Press, he became Assistant Editor of the Farmer's Guide, then moved on to The Prairie Farmer as Associate Editor. From there, he became Director of Information for the American Farm Bureau Federation in 1936 where he served for 22 years until his retirement on December 31, 1957. During his AFBF career, Mr. Lacey traveled in all states and became acquainted with more than 1,000 editors of daily newspapers.

From his County Agent days onward, Mr. Lacey was intimately associated with the Farm Bureau movement. He knew personally many of the early farm leaders, and he wrote reams of material on the aims, policies, and development of Farm Bureau.

In 1946, he was a member of the U. S. Farm Delegation which set up the International Federation of Agriculture Producers in London, England. A member of many journalistic and allied professional associations, he has been listed in "Who's Who in America." He holds life membership in the American Association of Agricultural Editors. He keeps in practical touch with farm conditions by ownership of a small farm in his native county.

Mr. Lacey and his wife, Mary, live in Wheaton, Illinois. Their six children, the youngest of whom will graduate from college this year, are scattered in six different states, from Tennessee to Oregon.

Mr. Dale Hewitt, Farm Advisor of Scott County, is Program Chairman for the evening.

Referendum Defeated By 5 To 1 Majority; Largest In History

Lashing out against higher taxes, the largest number of voters in Jacksonville school election history cast an overwhelming mandate Saturday against an increase in the educational tax levy of School District 117.

By a majority of more than five to one, the voters of the district waited patiently at the six polling places to indicate their choice on the issue.

Total votes cast were: 1,092 "YES" and 5,534 "NO".

Largest In History

The total vote of 6,783, including spoiled ballots, was the largest in school election history.

The issue was defeated by as much as 19 to 1 in at least one precinct but was a decisive defeat in all of the six precincts.

Both sides made a concentrated effort to secure the support of the voting public.

Mann Comments

In an interview Saturday night, J. A. Mann, superintendent of schools, District 117, made the following statement:

"Naturally, those of us who are connected with the schools and who see our educational needs so clearly are greatly disappointed with the results of this election.

"The overwhelming majority of 'no' votes apparently represents a complete rebellion against higher property taxes.

"The people have spoken and with a decisive voice. We must continue to strive for good education for our children with the funds that are available.

"Our Board of Education will have to make a number of decisions in the months ahead. They will not always be the decisions we should like to see made but I am confident that they will all reflect their deep concern for boys and girls and their educational problems.

"We truly hope that the entire community will stand behind us as we make the adjustments that may be necessary from time to time."

Month-Long Battle

The referendum culminated a month-long battle by the board of education to secure public support for the proposed forty-cent increase in the educational levy. Each board member worked for support of the measure and took part in more than thirty public and organizational meetings to present their case.

The opposition, working equally as hard, campaigned against the increase in the tax rate.

The voters' response to the "call to the polls" was surprising to a large number of interested spectators. School elections of the ordinary type normally draw no more than two or three hundred voters.

One Hour Wait

Voting was brisk in each of the six precincts as soon as the polls were declared open and did not stop until the 7 o'clock closing hour.

Long lines of patient voters waited as much as an hour to cast their ballot in Jacksonville precincts. The largest vote was cast at Washington school (2106). Voting continued more than one-half hour after the polls closed at Washington. The doors were locked at 7 o'clock and all those inside continued to vote.

Many of the voters visited the polls two or more times before entering the long lines. A number may have decided not to wait.

PEARL, Ill. — "Holland Wonder," third in series of documentary films by the T. L. Osborn Evangelistic Association, will be shown February 27 at Pearl School Gym at 7:30 p.m.

Persistence Fails To Pay Off In This Case

A magazine saleswoman who wouldn't take "No" for an answer was fined $50 in police magistrate's court Saturday.

The fine was assessed against Faith Robinson, a traveling saleswoman, by Police Magistrate Fred Daniels.

She was arrested by police Feb. 16 after complaints by several residents of Pitner Place and the 1300 block on West College avenue, that she grabbed and shook them, insisting violently that they subscribe to the publication she represented. One woman was badly frightened by the "high pressure" tactics of the saleswoman.

Other Fines Assessed

A busy court session was held Saturday morning at the city hall, with a number of fines for speeding and other violations.

Fines for speeding were assessed against Gilbert Stauffer, 1115 West Walnut, $10; Jimmie Robinson, 902 North Clay, $10; Gary L. Donovan, Jacksonville route three, $6; Walter Opperman, 330 West Walnut, $7; William H. Hitt, 1307 Edgehill, $10; Jewell Braner, Jacksonville route one, $7; Wilbur Freitag, 326 East Oak, $7.

Rollie Locke, 530½ North Sandy, was fined $15 for not having a city wheel tax sticker; James A. Turner, Jacksonville rural route three, $15 for driving too fast under conditions; John W. Houston, 702 South Kosciusko street, $10 for not having city wheel tax sticker; Douglas Clymer, $5 for driving wrong way on one-way street.

COOKING SCHOOL TICKETS

Due to the tremendous demand for cooking school tickets there will be very few available for sale over the counter at the Journal Courier office beginning Monday morning, Feb. 22, at 8 a.m.

Even with 350 more seats available this year tickets for the Friday night session were practically sold out by noon Saturday. Mail orders received Sunday will be filled that day and it is possible that some sessions will be completely sold out before the counter sale opens Monday morning.

Editorial Comment

Washington—Man And Myth

As each passing year takes us further away from the era when George Washington lived, it would appear to be increasingly harder to form a picture of the man as he actually was. He would seem to each succeeding generation more and more like a demigod and less like a man.

Happily, that is not the case. In fact, we have a more accurate estimation of Washington today than was held by 19th century historians, who were close to him in time.

While they are important, it is not due entirely to newly discovered papers written by Washington or his contemporaries or to hitherto unkown facts coming to light. Rather, it is due to the spirit motivating modern students of American history—the need for allowing facts, not sentiment, to form our opinions. This is one advantage of being far removed from a historical event or period.

The early writers, probably unconsciously, were looking for a symbol. The nation was still young and had no long line of illustrious heroes. Washington was the obvious choice since to nearly all he personified the Revolution and the Republic. Thus he could do no wrong. Adverse criticism was ignored and the real man was buried beneath volumes of eulogism.

This does not mean that modern writers are bent merely on proving Washington had feet of clay. On the contrary, the more we accept his human foibles and his failings, the more respect we have for his accomplishments. Surely it is no feat for a demigod to be a hero. There is no credit to Washington in maintaining he was infallible, at the expense of depreciating the work of Congress and innumerable other fine men.

We can truly revere George Washington now, on the 228th anniversary of his birth—not as a man who was faultless, but as a man who rose above the ordinary to help write one of the most significant and inspiring pages in the history of the world.

He Earned It—

Not long ago a news picture made the rounds showing the ex-dictator of Argentina, Juan Peron, as he appears today in Spain. It offered a sharp comment on the wages of the fallen dictator.

Now 64, Peron seemed to have few gray hairs. But his facial muscles sagged badly, and his eyes told of the emptiness of defeat and a barren future.

Obviously well fixed financially, he nevertheless is committed to wandering wherever he can find brief refuge. He has had several temporary homes in the western hemisphere, and no one can tell where he may go next.

In the first years after his toppling in 1955, it was often feared he might try a comeback, banking on the sizable remnants of his support in Argentina. That prospect now seems increasingly remote.

This man who at the height of his power set rigid rules as to how his people could live, is sentenced today to a futile existence in which he can do no more than watch others live.

He is a discorsolate spectator at a parade he once headed. It is a punishment he richly earned.

Day Of Glory?

We in the West are bound to view with mixed feelings the emergence of France into membership in the world nuclear club.

As a military man and leader devoted to the restoration of his country's former glory, French President Charles de Gaulle understands the decisive character of nuclear weapons in modern warfare.

With evident logic, he seeks this means of giving France a larger voice both in world affairs and within NATO and other Western councils. The explosion of an atomic device in the Sahara is intended as at least a partial cure for an inferiority which dates from the early years of World War II.

Possibly there will be in fact some gain to the West if France gets a feeling of greater equality from having entered the select nuclear circle, and from having freed itself, to an extent, from nuclear dependence on the United States and Britain.

But there are also serious drawbacks to this development. The explosion in the Sahara does not make easier the conclusion of a nuclear test ban agreement or general nuclear disarmament, which for 15 months has been under discussion in Geneva.

Thus far France has not demanded a place at the Geneva parleys, but it may. If it does, the presence of a stiff-backed De Gaulle representative could delay even further the reaching of an accord.

Furthermore, France's entry into the club stresses once more the danger that still more nations will master nuclear technique and add to the double threat of nuclear war and contamination of the peacetime atmosphere.

On top of all this, the West may reasonably regard as wasteful the French diversion of funds and industrial capacity to nuclear effort which duplicates that of America and Britain.

More useful in the overall Western defense picture would have been the fuller support of French ground armies needed for the fleshing out of NATO's far too slender barriers in Western Europe. France's detonation of a relatively crude atomic device is hardly compensation for this loss.

And this accomplishment in the Sahara could hardly come at a poorer time in the light of France's deteriorating relations with Africa. The native peoples regard the event as both a physical danger and a deep affront.

No one can dare say the gains outweigh the losses from France's "big day" in the North African desert.

Ike's Latin-American Tour Will Have Built-In Protection

BY PETER EDSON
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Essn.

WASHINGTON—(NEA)— President Eisenhower will carry a double insurance as he visits Brazil, Argentina, Chile and Uruguay.

The first protection comes from the fact that the Communists don't want to be responsible for any incidents which might upset the summit conference at Paris in May or the President's visit to Russia in June.

The second insurance is that the four South American countries all want a great deal from the United States in the way of more loans, grants, technical assistance and military aid. So the host countries are taking extra precautions to prevent incidents.

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, which is the President's first stop, presents a special problem. Brazil has an active Communist party of 40,000, have not hesitated to stir things up whenever they could embarrass President Kubitschek.

The tension has been heightened in recent months by impoverished country people moving into the cities. They have settled in camps and hovels on the outskirts. There has been no violence as yet. But they might be stirred to a demonstration by agitators.

Just How Much Control international Communist leaders exercise over Latin-American mobs is uncertain. There may be tight party discipline. The other view: native Reds do not take orders, but run their own show. And this accounts for their demonstrations running wild.

The possibility that Castro agents from Cuba might move into the countries to be visited by the President has not been overlooked. Their movements are being watched. The present theory is that they are surveying the possibilities for creating incidents.

A planeload of Cubans under Raul Castro tried to move in on the Inter-American foreign ministers meeting at Santiago last August. But they were effectively isolated and smothered at both Lima, Peru, and Santiago, Chile. And they never had a chance to demonstrate.

Santiago, however, is a likely spot for trouble during Eisenhower's visit. Labor unions in Chile are largely Communist-dominated. There is a big and active Communist youth organization. Party members is estimated at 20,000, with 90,000 sympathizers.

Any Incidents Are Considered Possible, though unlikely. They may be confined to such harmless gestures as the carrying of unfriendly signs.

Denunciations of "Yankee Imperialism" which have been traditional in Latin America for many years, are to be expected. One current rallying cry is to have the United States give up and get out of the Panama Canal.

U. S. Secret Service security arrangements for President Eisenhower will be much tighter than they were for Vice President Nixon's tour in 1958. This is in anticipation of bigger crowds.

Eisenhower is not visiting the three cities where Nixon got his roughest treatment: Lima, Peru; Bogota, Columbia; Caracas, Venezuela.

Nixon was greeted on arrival at Montevideo, Uruguay, by an airport crowd of 500, including 40 students shouting, "Get Out Nixon." This was his first stop. It will be the President's last. But "Get Out Eisenhower" signs have already been reported—and reported taken down.

In Buenos Aires, Argentina, which was Nixon's and will be Eisenhower's second stop, the vice president got only a little anti-U. S. heckling at a student forum.

But there is more unrest in Argentina now than then. In addition to an estimated 80,000 Communists and double that many Red sympathizers, there are several million old Peron die-hards. They are all anxious to upset President Frondizi's administration and its austerity program.

Police and armed forces are, however, better able to deal with an emergency in the Argentine than in the other countries.

Romance and Remarriage Add Glow to Golden Years

BY MARIE DAERR

It's June in January, and the St. Valentine's Day any old month, in many a golden-age group these days.

After-60 romances are budding — and blossoming into marriage — wherever older people get together, in churches, in clubs, in recreation centers.

How about listening in on what some of the older people themselves have to say about whether it's smart to let Cupid have his way, even though the silver threads have replaced the gold?

"When I was a widower, I was a fifth wheel," one recently remarried man of 70 told me. "Saturday nights, I'd play cards with my friends.

"Everyone was paired off, husband and wife. It was no good. Now that I'm married again, I have a place in life. The loneliness is gone."

A lively little bride of 73 told me: "Of course, I'm for marriage after 60. My husband and I, both widowed, met in church.

"He was laid up after an accident. While he was in the hospital, I sent him church bulletins and papers."

She giggled.

"When he was on crutches and anxious to have a little change from the place where he boarded, I'd take him out in my car," she continued. "Maybe that's taking advantage of a man!"

Her husband, also 73, interrupted.

"I don't look unhappy, do I?" he asked. "We've been married three wonderful years."

One golden-age lounge patron—feminine—admitted that finances prompt many an older-years marriage.

"When a new man comes to the lounge, it doesn't take us women long to find out how big a Social Security check he gets!" she told me.

A golden-age club took the subject of marriage-after-60 so seriously, it held a debate.

"I think people should consider marriage, even if they're 100," one woman said. "Companionship is the important thing."

"You don't know the real meaning of love until you're about 60," said another. "Before that, it's only an enjoyable pastime."

From a man: "Children have a great habit of warning a parent against remarrying. But it's no fun to come home to four walls. And no fun to have no one to look after you when you're sick."

Not all club members were on Cupid's side.

"If you want to marry when you're young, go ahead," said one lady, firmly. "But, when you're older, it's best to live alone."

Q—Do people ever really recover from a stroke?—L. F.

A—Yes, some patients make complete recoveries. Even if there is some impairment, a person may continue to recover over an 18-month period.

Q—My husband, who was 65 in October, died Dec. 30. He had cashed October and November Social Security checks. His December check came Jan. 3. I took the check to the Social Security office and asked to have a new check issued, in my name. I was told I had nothing coming in the way of benefits. Is this right? — Mrs. M. K.

A—You don't state your age. No December check was due your husband, since he did not survive the entire month. But, if you were age 62 in December, you were entitled to a widow's benefit for that month. If not, the benefit will start the month you reach 62. You also are entitled to a death benefit of up to $255.

In Hollywood

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Jane Powell, a star since she was 14, is all woman now but can't convince producers of that biological fact.

"I'm tired of being patted on top of the head," she moans.

Her plaint is one common to many actresses who started making movies in their teens. There have been exceptions — Elizabeth Taylor at 16 played Robert Taylor's wife in a movie.

"Debbie Reynolds would still be playing 'Tammy' if the headlines hadn't convinced producers she was a mature woman instead of a kid on the lot," says Jane.

Jane is happily married so she's not planning to get involved in the divorce courts or any other such drastic maneuvers, but careerwise, it's a big problem for her.

"I'm tired of playing the girl-next-door," she says. "What I need is a part where I play the girl in the house next door."

In a number of her Metro pictures and some television performances, Jane has come across as as a sexy woman — especially when she forgets her cultured soprano voice for low down blues.

"Every time I do something like that," she says, "even my agents call me 'the new Jane Powell.' It really burns me up.

"There is no new Jane Powell. I am—and always have been the same. They just can't get me out of that little girl mold.

"I want to do crazy things in the movies— things like Irene Dunne used to do, but I always get the same answer—and the same pat on the head. I can't wait around until movie musicals come back."

Jane thinks some of her trouble is related to her size—five feet. But she says, "Gloria Swanson is only 4 feet 11 but no one ever thought of her as anything but a siren. I guess it's just the way you get started in this business.

"My whole problem is that 'I'm just too tight, don't drink or smoke and when I play Las Vegas, don't even gamble.

"Who can be colorful with habits like those."

Still under 30, Jane feels that it's going to take another five or six years before producers will think of her as a woman.

"Teen-agers don't want to see a mother playing teen-age roles on the screen—yet that's the kind of scripts I get all the time."

Jane believes television is her salvation.

"It gives me an opportunity to do things that movie producers won't let me do."

Meanwhile, Jane keeps up with her singing—takes a lesson every day. She's a perennial favorite at Hollywood Bowl where she packs the 20,000-seat amphitheater every season.

"I love to sing Rodgers and Hammerstein but I like to do Lena Horne songs too," says Jane.

"I'm really a big girl now."

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Pat Boone finally has decided to make Hollywood his home.

"We've definitely decided to move out from New York," says Pat. "Our two oldest girls (he has four) start school next fall and we no longer can move them back and forth across the country."

The singer has kept his home in New York City since he first hit big on the Arthur Godfrey TV show. There was a good reason —he was still going to Columbia University.

Another prime reason for his settling here is the success of his latest picture—"Journey to the Center of the Earth."

It's 20th Century-Fox' biggest grossing film since "The Robe," a studio source reports, and has given Pat new stature in the industry.

"The combination of Pat and Jules Verne drew them into see this picture," one studio executive says. "Since Jules is no longer around and Pat is, we decided we wanted him out here all the time."

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — James Shigeta, hailed as the first star of the 50th state, had a zigzag climb to fame.

Born in Honolulu, Jimmy attended New York University, where he gained some fame as a night-club singer. Later he became a sergeant in the U. S. Marines in the Korean war.

After the war, he came to Hollywood and sang at the old Mocambo under an anglicized name.

He went back to his Nisei name and headed for Tokyo. There he became a big hit as "the Frank Sinatra of Japan."

Producer Steve Parker assembled an all-Japanese show as a replacement for Dinah Shore's TV show. Shigeta came along — although he was the only one of the group who had to learn the Japanese language from textbooks.

From the TV show, Parker took him to Las Vegas where he became the star of the Dunes Hotel's "Holiday in Japan" show.

Producer Sammy Fuller then put him in "Crimson Kimona" and now he's playing a Chinese in the first Eastern-Western, "Walk Like a Dragon."

LATER THAN YOU THINK

LOVELAND, Colo. (AP)—Postmaster Fred Brewer was puzzled when he received a telephone call from a man who wanted to put in his bid to carry the mail on the star routes to Masonville, Pinewood and Drake.

Finally Brewer had the answer. The man was a half century too late. The Loveland Reporter-Herald had reprinted an advertisement in the paper's column, "50 Years Ago in Loveland."

Some Questions Men Can't, Women Won't, Answer

"I've been married for 20 years and have three daughters, but there are still some things I don't understand about women," one of my men readers confesses.

"Why does a woman have to telephone several friends to find out if they are going to wear hats before she decides whether or not to wear one to some special affair?

"Why does a woman love sentimental gifts before she is married (like a dozen red roses), and prefer something practical after she has been married a few years?

"Why is a woman so secretive about her age once she has passed 25, and so secretive about her weight once it has passed 125?

"Why does it infuriate a woman for her husband to make suggestions that would make household chores easier, more efficient?

"Why does an otherwise honest woman feel no compunction about telling her closest friend gossip she has promised 'not to tell a soul'?

"Why does a woman ask her husband for an honest opinion on whether or not he likes her new hairdo, her new hat, or the way she has rearranged the living room, and then get annoyed if he is less than enthusiastic?

"Why is a woman sure that she understands men perfectly but is convinced that no man ever understands a woman?

"Why does a woman buy things she knows she is going to return?

"Why can't a woman order a meal in a restaurant without asking for at least one substitution?

"Why do women of all ages refer to themselves as 'girls'?"

WEEKLY BIBLE COMMENT

The Christian Layman

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

Sometimes he is outwardly and distinctly Christian, his life a direct expression of his faith in Christ as Saviour, Teacher and example—like my friend, who recently visited all the schools and colleges for Negroes that for more than a century his denomination (Congregational) has sponsored in the U.S. South.

Sometimes he represents much of the Christian realties, so far as the teaching of Jesus is concerned, and without bearing the Christian name. He may be a Jew, perhaps a Mohammedan, possibly of no religious designation at all. But if his chief concern is for truth and right, for love of his fellowmen, he possesses the nonprofessional religion that the world needs above all else.

A great need of our times is that men and women of good will and vision should attain a common strength in combating evil in all its forms and all the divisive things that those of ill will find to quarrel about.

I recently referred to the extent to which bureaucracy in religion, with its emphasis upon authority, has been paralleling bureaucracy in government.

In the realm of government I think hope for the future lies in those who believe in government "of the people, by the people, and for the people," and who are determined that bureaucracy may never be allowed to subvert the principle of democracy as Lincoln defined it.

Similarly, I think that in the sphere of religion the great principle that must not be subverted is freedom—the freedom of unofficial individuals and groups to follow the dictates of reason and conscience in religious expression and action.

Churchmen of the bureaucratic type may fail to realize the extent to which "official" religion is losing out to an awakening increase of an unofficial prophetic voice and action. One of its aspects is in a dedicated journalism.

To me a prophetic voice was heard recently in a column by James Reston, Washington correspondent for the New York Times. He commented on a plea by Secretary of State Herter for "subordinating our private interests to the paramount public interest. . . . using our economy less for the things which do not really matter and more for the things which do."

Reston thinks the American character has not been debased, that it will respond to an effective appeal, but with Biblical Amos-like incisiveness he assails the present situation:

"The dominant sound in American ears today is the endless babble of commercial advertising, interlarded with Elvis Presley and the singing commercials. Night and day this incessant tribal beat goes on and the hawkers train and inform our minds in you know what.

"So long as this is the dominant voice of America, the quiet, courteous and sensible words of the secretary of state will be overwhelmed. Is this inevitable? Is there no way for the highest common denominator to be heard above the din?

FILL 'ER UP—WITH ROCK

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bartender Valentine Tatitch had more trouble than usual, this time, in complying with the order to "fill her up."

A car broke the paving over a 120- year-old well on the parking lot next to the cocktail lounge where Tatitch works.

It took more than a ton of rock to fill the old well to the water level.

Olympics Athletes Import Favorite Foreign Dishes

BY GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise
Food and Markets Editor

In planning nutritious food with taste appeal for the 800 athletes from 33 nations competing in the Winter Olympic Games in Squaw Valley, Calif., the menu committee must include many foreign dishes. They serve at least one well-known foreign dish on each dinner menu.

There is German sauerbraten with Bavarian cabbage (sweet and sour), Danish potato dumplings and stompot, among others.

The athletes are served cafeteria style in their own exclusive dining hall; Olympic officials are served by waiters in an adjoining dining room. Members of the press eat in their own press building. There is a hot and cold buffet available at all hours, because the varying deadlines of newspapers around the world require the newsmen to be up working around the clock, often late at night while the rest of Olympic Village is asleep.

Here is a recipe for Danish potato dumplings that will make approximately 12 medium - sized dumplings. They are usually served with chicken stew or chicken soup.

Danish Potato Dumplings
(Makes 12 medium-size dumplings)

Two cups of potatoes, cooked and riced or mashed; 2 tablespoons flour, 1 tablespoon melted shortening, 1 slightly beaten egg, ½ teaspoon flour, 1 tablespoon melted shortening, 1 slightly beaten egg, ½ teaspoon salt, few pepper grains, ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg.

Combine all ingredients; mix thoroughly. Divide into 12 portions and shape into balls. Chill. Drop onto gently boiling stew or chicken soup. Cover closely and steam for about 12 minutes.

Stompot

This is a casserole dish of very-well-done boiled beef, which is cut into small pieces and combined with mashed potatoes to which eggs and salt, pepper and nutmeg have been added. It is then placed in the oven for 20 minutes to half an hour.

Monday's Dinner: Half grapefruit, chicken stew with Danish potato dumplings, green beans with almonds, sliced tomatoes with minced dill, prune and cream cheese pie, coffee, tea, milk.

4-H School Wins Special Award

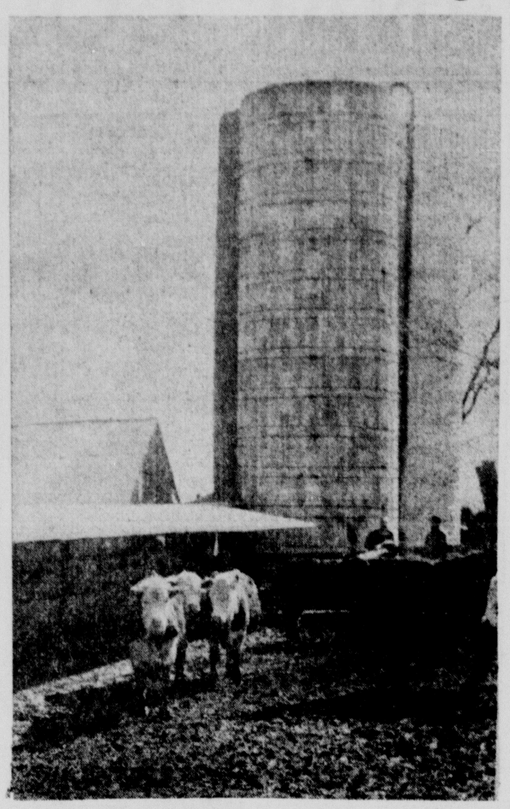

4-H club work in the interest of soil and water conservation in Morgan county won one of the four regional plaques offered by the Illinois Bankers association. Other winning counties were Boone, Stephenson and Marion.

Clyde Taylor of the Bank of Bluffs, president of the Morgan-Scott-Schuyler-Cass Federation, presented the plaque Wednesday evening at a meeting of the 4-H agriculture committee.

A school on soil and water management was a feature of the award-winning program.

'Push-Button' Feeding

Bob Houston and Farm Adviser George A. Trull are shown in the background as they discuss plans for Thursday's "Beef Cattle Day in Morgan county."

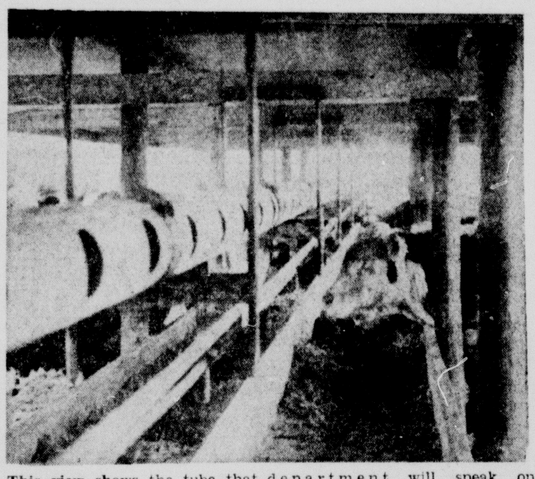

Pictured are part of the automatic feeding system that is being developed by Houston. All persons interested in cattle feeding are invited to visit the farm Thursday morning. The program will begin at 9:30 a.m.

At the Houston farm, which is located seven miles northwest of Jacksonville, visitors will see an automatic silage unloader and a 60 foot tube that delivers the feed to the cattle. He now has 126 steers on feed. A scoop shovel is still used to add ground shelled corn and protein supplement to the corn silage.

He hopes to add a wet corn tank that will hold 12,500 bushels and a six ton holding tank for protein supplement.

At the present time it takes about 15 minutes in the morning and as long in the afternoon to feed the 126 head. When, and if, he gets his set-up completed he hopes to feed 300 head of cattle annually.

About 3,000 square feet of concrete paving keep the cattle out of the mud.

This view shows the tube that stretches above the feed bunks and delivers the feed to the waiting animals.

At 11 a.m. the group will assemble at the Davidsmeyer-Green farm a mile and a half east of Pisgah. There they will see 313 head of cattle on feed, a new 18' by 120' cattle barn and 394 feet of concrete fence-line feed bunks and a large area of blacktop and concrete feeding lots.

Lunch will be served at Farm Bureau hall. It will be followed by two talks by U.I. livestock specialists. Dick Carlisle of the animal science department will discuss "Changing Patterns in Beef Production" and M. B. Kirtley of the livestock marketing department will speak on "Changes in Beef Marketing."

Chemicals To Take Place Of Nurse Crop

Seeding legumes without a nurse crop is a possibility for the future. When a few more problems are ironed out, agronomists think this idea may move successfully from experimental plots to actual farm practice.

Letting legumes go it alone without a nurse crop leaves it up to weed sprays to supply protection, and some new selective herbicides have turned in impressive performances. However, such chemicals as dalapon and 4- (2, 4-DB) have not yet been cleared by the Food and Drug Administration for general use on forages.

Pure stands of legumes were spring-seeded in University of Illinois trials, and two cuttings were harvested in the fall. The first yielded 1.35 tons an acre; the second, almost one ton. Selective herbicides gave good control of broadleaf and grassy weeds, reports Agronomist B. J. Gossett. And legume stands the next spring were considerably better than on check plots, where stands were established with an oat companion crop.

Letting chemicals instead of oats play nurse to legumes offers an appealing prospect for at least a two-ton forage yield the first year and superior stands the second. But the new practice does have some limitations, says Gossett, who believes a "wait-and-see" attitude is best for farmers at this stage.

One of the featured exhibits at the 1960 Farm and Home Festival March 31 and April 1 and 2 will be "Chemistry in Agriculture." It will show advancements in weed control chemicals and the many other ways in which chemistry is helping farmers.

I.A.A. TO BREAK GROUND MONDAY

Construction work on the Illinois Agricultural Association and affiliated company building is slated to begin Monday, Feb. 22.

"We are not planning a major event now," according to IAA President William J. Kuhfuss, "because the weather is unpredictable and we do not have the facilities or parking space for holding any kind of elaborate ground-breaking ceremony."

However, Kuhfuss said that a ceremony is planned for sometime during the summer to honor laying of the cornerstone of the building. At that time, officials, Farm Bureau members and the public will be invited to take part in the activities.

Amateur Artists Invited To Enter Sangamon Show

Jacksonville area amateur artists have been invited to participate in the Sangamon "Town and Country Art Show," Morgan County Farm Adviser George Trull stated Saturday.

The show will be held at the Sangamon County Farm Bureau auditorium in Springfield on Monday, March 7. The purpose is to stimulate appreciation and interest in art and to increase the pleasure and satisfaction to be derived by amateurs.

Outstanding entries will be selected to participate in the University of Illinois Farm and Home Festival at Urbana March 31, April 1 and 2.

Entry forms and fees are due in the County Extension office, 134 North 9th street, Springfield, by 5 p.m. Thursday, March 3. The entry fee will be $1 per item. Exhibits must be in place by 10 a.m. Monday, March 7, and may be picked up between 3:30 and 5 p.m. the same day.

Anyone interested in entering this show may obtain entry blanks at the Morgan County Extension office, 116 North East street, Jacksonville.

Illinois Farmers Outlook Letter

THE HOG SITUATION AND OUTLOOK

On December 22 the U. S. Department of Agriculture reported that farmers planned to cut 1960 spring sow farrowings 12 per cent below those of 1959. Immediately thereafter prices of feeder pigs and bred sows rose sharply.

Since that time there has been much speculation about the outcome of spring farrowings. Many farmers and crystal-ball operators believe that hog producers will not cut production anywhere near 12 per cent. Some have even said that there would be no cut at all — maybe even an increase.

We have been asked for our views. So here goes:

In the first place, it is important to understand that the report of farmers' intention is not a government forecast. The USDA merely surveys hog producers' plans and reports them so that they can change their plans if they wish. If they are planning to raise too many pigs, it makes good sense to find out about it so that they can cut back a little. If they find that they are planning to cut too much, they can get their production on a more even keel.

In the past not many hog producers have taken advantage of these opportunities. At the turning point in the hog cycle, they have often cut production more than the survey showed. This past fall furnished a good example:

In September farmers reported their intention to cut December-February farrowings by 4 per cent. In December they reported that they were slashing those farrowings by 15 per cent! At the same time they said they planned to cut March-May farrowings by 11 per cent.

When producers got the news of the 15 per cent slash in December-February farrowings, it was too late for them to make any substantial changes in plans for those months. They could, of course, have bred more gilts to farrow in April and May.

The sharp rise in prices of feeder pigs and bred gilts in late December simply reflected an increase in demand. The increase in demand did not make any more hogs. It just boosted the price of those already on farms. Farmers who owned them suddenly decided that they were worth more. Farmers who wanted to buy raised their ideas about what they would pay.

According to the December report, farmers in nine corn-belt states had about 6 per cent more market hogs over 6 months old on hand December 1 than they had the year before. The commercial hog kill in December, however, was 19 per cent above that of the previous year.

The number of hogs 3 to 6 months old on farms December 1 was reported to be only 2 per cent above that of a year earlier. But slaughter in January was about 13 per cent greater. These figures surely do not point to any holding back of gilts for late spring farrowing.

The number of hogs under 3 months old on December 1 was reported to be 3 per cent less than last year. These pigs will begin to go to market in April.

These facts point to about the same market supplies for the next four months as in 1959, when prices at terminal markets stuck close to the $16.00 mark.

Morgan To Join In Celebration Of 4-H Week

Jacksonville will join in the observance of National 4-H Week, March 5-12.

Window displays prepared by club members will be set up in stores throughout Morgan county that week. These displays will depicit various phases of 4-H work; projects such as swine, beef, crops, home improvement, food preparation; activities such as safety, demonstrations and camping.

The 4-H Federal committee on display will hold a final meeting Tuesday, Feb. 23, at Farm Bureau hall. Melvin Thies of the East Side Juniors heads the group; other members are Darrell Sorrill, North Side Ag; Linda Weeks, Chapin Top Notchers, and Connie Spaenhower, East Side Juniors. The Federation is offering a $5 prize for the best agriculture display and the same amount for the best exhibit prepared by a home economics club.

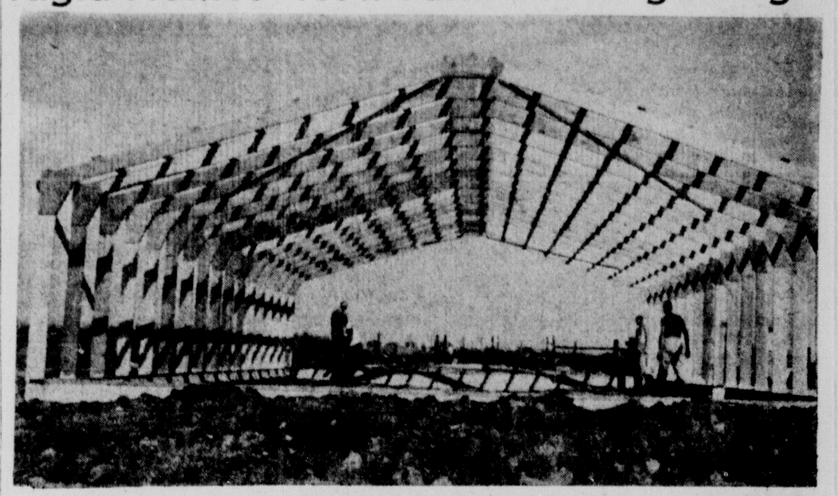

Adult judges will view the displays and rate them by a score card which gives a possible 30 points for the message told, 20 points for attractiveness and 10 each for title, subject, interest holding, appearance and workmanship.

The annual rallies will be held in March. The older group, those 14 years or older will meet at Farm Bureau hall Wednesday, March 16, at 7:30 p.m. The younger group, 10 through 13, will rally Monday, March 21, at Jonathan Baldwin Turner school at 7 p.m.

Rigid Frames—New Farm Building Design

URBANA — Lumber rigid frames may be the answer to getting durable wooden building frames than can be built and erected on the farm with farm labor.

The frames provide more usable space by doing away with posts, ties and other interior obstructions. They're quick and easy to build. And they usually cost less than conventional construction.

The new frames were developed by University of Illinois agricultural engineers. They consist of two studs and two rafters made rigid by gluing and nailing a plywood gusset plate to the sides of each connecting point. The gusset plates hold the frames rigid and neatly eliminate the need for inside supports.

This spacious, clear-span construction is ideal for many types of farm buildings, says E. L. Hansen, U. of I agricultural engineer who helped design the new frames. The frames are especially suited to use in poultry and hog houses, garages and machinery sheds.

Hansen says lumber rigid frames are built half a frame at a time. Half-frames, consisting of a stud, a rafter and the eave gussets, can be assembled inside a building—either at a local plant or on the farm.

The half-frames are then hauled to the construction site. The builder lays two of them together on the ground and nails and glues them together at the ridge with plywood gussets.

He then tips the total frame into position and fastens it to the foundation. The frames are light; four men can easily handle even the heaviest ones.

Hansen says the new frames were first tried on a small hog house in 1957. They've come a long way since then.

A series of frame designs now are available that vary from 4 x 4 to 2 x 12 in lumber sizes, from 12 to 40 feet in span, from 6 to 12 feet in inside wall height and from about 1 foot to 14 feet 6 inches in recommendation maximum spacing.

Rigid frame construction isn't new. But for the most part frames have been factory produced from steel or lamination wood. New lumber rigid frames satisfy the need for frames that can be built by local lumber yards, local builders or on the farm.

For further information on lumber rigid frames, write for the booklet, "Lumber Rigid Frames for Farm Buildings," Department of Agricultural Engineering, University of Illinois, Urbana.

Even though farmers used record amounts of corn from October through December, stocks on farms and in elevators on January 1 totaled 526 million bushels above a year earlier.

Plan Two Pools For Wool Sales

Two wool pools will offer Illinois farmers a chance to get above-averages for their wool next May. The pools will be held in Peoria on May 16-19 and at Dixon Springs on May 9-11.

Last year wool sold through the Peoria pool brought an average price of 43c a pound. Dixon Springs wool averaged 42c.

T. R. Greathouse of the U. I. College of Agriculture says that a large volume of wool, completely sorted and graded, attracts higher prices than an individual farmer can get.

"Wool pools also have an educational advantage," he says. "By watching graders sort and grade the wool, farmers can learn why it receives various grades."

Last year one Morgan county flock owner sold his wool through the Peoria pool. Those wishing more information on this subject should consult his farm adviser.

ThisMan-Of-WarDoes Not Kill With Cannons

By N. Richard

The name Portuguese Man-of-War might remind us of a seaworthy vessel of the 1700's which has survived many a bombardment from enemy cannons, but in reality it is the name of a sailing jelly-fish by the genus name of Physalia. It can, however, be as deadly as a warship.

Beneath its air-filled float it dangles tentacles which may reach nearly 100 feet down into the water. These two structures make up the jellyfish.

The float, which is beautifully colored, has a crest which catches the wind. It sweeps the man-of-war throughout the warmer parts of the oceans.

Sometimes it deposits it upon the beaches stranded and not able to return to the sea.

It would seem that this animal is completely at the mercy of the wind, but this is not completely true. The crest can be turned slightly to change the direction of movement.

There are some relatives of Physalis which can allow the gas to escape from their floats to give them the ability to submerge. When they produce new gas, they will come to the surface again.

Sting Dangerous

The tentacles are to be feared by swimmers. Some of them contain sting cells which are used to capture food and to protect themselves.

They are sometimes fatal to man because they are highly poisonous or because they cause the swimmer to become incapacitated and drown.

Abe Lincoln

By Terry Walker

When abraham was just a lad,
He saw some slaves and it made him very sad.
He vowed that he would make them free,
Little did he know what a great man he'd be.

Yes, Abraham was great,
Soon he was a representative of our State
Then he was nominated leader of our land,
He worked; said speeches; and planned.
And he won!

Everyone loved him like a son.
Later his wish came true,
The slaves were freed and fed, too.
Even now everyone loves him,
'cause
He surely is the best
President there ever was!

Company Too
By Emma Mae Leonhard

Two weeks ago we shared with you an article on living with oneself, and we received some very encouraging remarks from some of our readers. We also liked its philosophy, for we feel that it could mean much to many people.

On the other hand, we like people too, people in small groups and in crowds. One can be the loneliest in a crowd, or he can be absorbed in it.

We cannot really know whether our nearest neighbor or friend is a part of our group mentally or spiritually even if physically, and it is better that we do not know. However, we do know that people need people for encouragement and sympathy.

Birds, too, do not always shun their kind. We have frequently mentioned the flocks of Cardinals that inhabit certain undergrowth along streams and that sometimes visit even a garden in a town. Recently we learned of such a surprising flock in Jacksonville, a brilliantly red picture in the snow. Unless disturbed, they are usually silent in the winter.

Of course Juncos and Tree Sparrows always fill certain weed patches in winter, chattering together with their tinkling and clicking notes. Red-winged Blackbirds blacken fields and marshes, particularly in the fall.

Likewise during migration swallows drape the telephone wires; geese form great irregular V's in the sky; ducks cover the ponds; and little sandpipers line the flats. Those are all familiar flocks of birds.

Flash Of Yellow

However, on the morning of January 30, when three of us were out birding, we came upon an unexpected large flock of Meadowlarks in two adjoining trees near MacMurray Cabin. At first we thoughtlessly passed them off as another flock of starlings just like the many that we had already passed without pleasure.

Then we looked again as we caught the flash of bright yellows. At least fifty Meadowlarks almost filled the top half of the two trees—a large flock for Meadowlarks at any time, but unbelievably large for winter.

They seemed to be absorbing all the sunlight they could, very little for that foggy morning; and they were sharing it too. But there always seems to be enough sunshine for those who seek it.

Although Meadowlarks are common birds, we stopped to gaze at them. And then it was that we heard a quiet chorus of Meadowlarks caroling, not piercing as in the spring; it was a soft mixture of slurred whistles, musical tee-yah, tee-yair's. These larks seemed to be singing to themselves, not one by one, but in unison.

Perhaps we have in the world three kinds of people: those few who live to themselves, those who live in crowds, and those fortunate ones who do both at the proper time.

Like the birds, we can choose if we will to do so.

World's largest open-air fruit and vegetable market is in Benton Harbor, Mich.

Tomorrow I'll go to the hat shop.
Buy a hat with the greatest of ease.
Who says it has to become me?
I'll buy whatever I please.

There's the garden bursting with flowers,
And the rug I am longing to hook,
That poem I'm writing on rostrums,
And by golly, that unfinished book.

Get on with your husbands and sweet hearts,
Companions and father-in-laws;
I'll get me a red and white rabbit
That never will open its jaws.

For I once had a glamerous parrot
That came all the way from Hongkong.
Her tongue was hung in the middle
And she often gave me the gong.

One day I was in my seclusion;
Some one knocked, Polly bellowed, "Come in"
The weather was hot as the mustard
And my head wore a green curling pin.

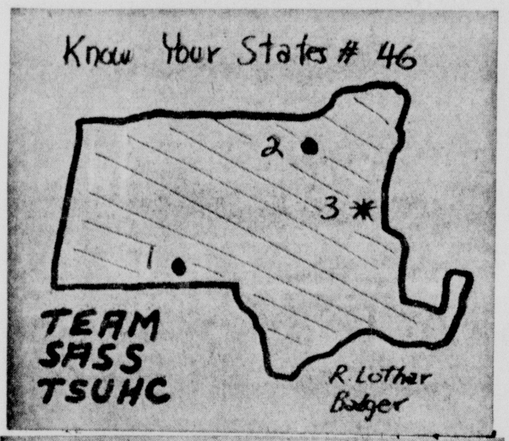

A stranger whom Polly named Brackett
Had helped himself in, there's no doubt
I could not see even his coat tails
But hoped Polly would be a good scout.

George Washington

Cheryl Duvendack, age 11 of Chapin, drew this picture of our first president whose Birthday is tomorrow. She includes the hatchet and cherries that we like to think of with George Washington even though we know he did not really chop down his father's tree.

If you too like to draw, send a picture—just 4 inches square and all your own work—to the Jacksonville Junior Journal-Courier, and when your drawing appears you may come in for your JUNIOR JOURNALIST PENCIL and JUNIOR PRESS CARD to which all are entitled who have anything they have drawn or written printed on the Junior page.

By Joseph A. Smith

Transmitters

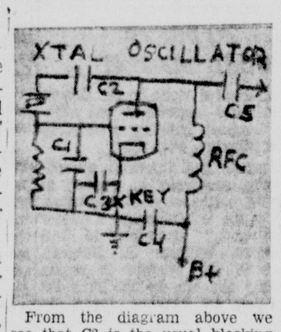

In starting this interesting subject you would be wise to first review the sections on "Transmitters" and "Modulation and Keying" in "How To Become A Radio Amateur." Also the Handbook discussion is excellent and complete for our needs.

Now we shall take a sample code transmitter and take it apart piece by piece. If you understand it, you are well on the way to understanding transmitters in general at least in so far as their basic setup.

Let us assume that we have a little 35 watt imput transmitter that consists of a Pierce-type crystal controlled oscillator (using a 6C5 triode tube) and a single beam power 6BQ6GT tetrode final amplifier.

Looking at the pierce oscillator (see an example in A.R.R.L. Handbook) first we see that grid bias is achieved through a grid to ground resistor. In parallel with it is a feedback capacitor C1 which improves the general operation and keying of the oscillator.

Too large a capacitor will cause excessive feed-back and, as a consequence, cause too much crystal current to be drawn possibly breaking the crystal. Too small a capacitor might make the oscillator sluggish and chirpy in operation when keyed.

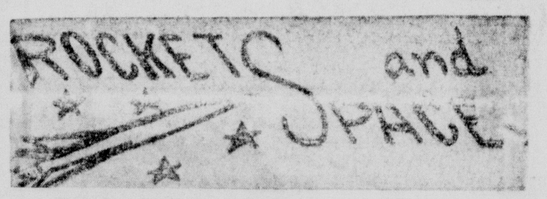

From the diagram above we see that C2 is the usual blocking capacitor between the plate and one side of the crystal which, while it keeps plate voltage off the crystal, allows a small portion of the oscillation signal to be passed back to the crystal. C3 and C4 are the usual R. F. bypass capacitors for keeping R. F. out of the power supply and off of key leads.

The R. F. choke passes the D.C. voltage and current through it on its way to the plate, but keeps R. F. Out of the power supply. A small amount of the signal generated within the oscillator is passed on through C5 the interstage coupling capacitor to the grid of the final amplifier following. Its size (capacity wise) determines how much drive is coupled through it.

Incidently, the crystal is effectively an inductance and capacitance network and tuned network fixed tuned to oscillate at a predetermined frequency.

Day On Jupiter

By Walter B. Hendrickson Jr.

From November 29-30, 1958, Dr. Carl C. Clark, head of the Biophysics Division of the Aviation Medical Acceleration Laboratory, U. S. Naval Air Development Center, Johnsville, Pa., rode the lab's giant centrifuge at 2g (gravity) for 24 hours.

This is equal to spending a day in a sealed capsule on Jupiter — the largest planet in the solar system. This is because the gravity of Jupiter is twice that of earth.

During this time Dr. Clark cooked, ate, slept, stood up, made medical examinations of himself, wrote down the results of these examinations, typed some of them, and generally carried out the activities of everyday life. He reduced dizziness and nausea as much as possible by making only slow head motions whenever they were needed.

Toward the end of the 24 hour experiment Dr. Clark found sitting upright at 2g was accompanied by faintness. This was the same sort of faintness that results from getting up too fast at 1g.

Space Exercises

Exercises to make in the reclining position before setting upright are being developed. These will reduce the tendency toward faintness when sitting up under 2g. With these exercises human life appears to be entirely possible.

This and similar medical experiments indicate that when an atomic motor is developed that can produce a steady acceleration for 24 hours or more it can be used to power a manned spaceship. Such a motor would shorten the time of flights in space. This is because if the 2g acceleration for 24 hours were in a straight line the rocket would be traveling 3.8 million miles per hour 45 million miles away from earth by the end of this period.

Using 2g acceleration half way to Mars and 2g deceleration the other half a space ship could get there in 42 hours. This, obviously, is quite a bit shorter than the seven months coasting required to bring a chemical rocket to Mars, or even the three months coasting flight with an atomic rocket.

Using this same method of 2g acceleration half way and 2g deceleration half way a trip to the moon would take 3½ hours. The same kind of a trip across the country would take only 15 minutes.

CHESTNUT OAK AND POST OAK
by Rip Barnsdall

The chestnut oak has leaves that resemble the leaves of the chestnut tree. The bark is thick and has deep ridges in it.

It is most often found on poor, dry soils. The bark of the chestnut oak was often sought out for the making of tannic acid.

The post oak grows to 40-50 feet. It was formerly used in ship building, for fence posts, and railroad ties. It is still being used in the latter two cases.

The leaves are a dull, dark green. The shapes of the leaves are somewhat irregular.

Part 2: Special Day

Hettie talks with the quaintly dressed little girl, in the album, who tells her—

"Do you see my sash? It is Ella's Roman striped one.

"I could dress up in some of her things, but not this sash. It was her prettiest ribbon. She promised I could wear it to something very special."

"Did the special time ever come?" Hettie asked. "Sunday School or Church or a party maybe?"

"Ellen was going away to school. Her trunk was full of new things, but one day she said I Want Mable's picture too, Ma, could we go to the photographer's?"

"Ma looked at both of us."

"You may go tomorrow, wear your best dress, Ellen, we want your picture too."

"Is your sister's picture here too," Hettie interrupted

"No, it is in your big album with all the grownups. She wore her dark green silk, but she curled my hair and buttoned my white shoes and my fawn silk.

"Then she ran to her trunk and do you know what she brought back! Her Roman Striped Sash for me!

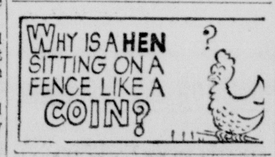

"It went around my waist and tied in long bows right under my elbow where I could see it!"

"How did you get in this album "How did you get in this album?" Hettie questioned.

"Oh, I stood on Ellen's bureau at school. When she came home again the sash was worn out, but Ma said Let's save the photographs, so here am I."

4-H Pine Plantation Making Good Growth

W. F. Bulkley of Champaign, U.I. extension forester, was at the 4-H camp site on Lake Jacksonville last week to inspect the white, red and jack pine trees that have been planted there during the past five years.

He found them in good condition, with the white pines especially showing excellent growth. Many of the white pines planted in 1955 have grown four feet in the last three years and one unusual individual grew more than six feet in that time.

A total of 11,300 trees were set out in an area south of the main camp. The plantings were arranged to leave broad paths through the area when the trees stretch up.

"This will be a mighty pretty place in another 10 years," the forester said. "And it will improve as the years go by."

Every other year the "volunteer weed trees" have been sprayed with 2, 4-5T in diesel oil.

Generally speaking, the kill has been very good, Bulkley observed. He plans to repeat the spraying late next fall.

"We're getting quite a few thorn apples in the plantation, and they are always hard to kill," he commented.

The open winter has tended to hold down rabbit damage, although the rabbit population at the lake is said to be much higher than last winter and near the all-time record.

"Of course, we could still get a severe, late-winter ice and snow storm," Bulkley said. "Then the rabbits could go to work on the small seedlings set out last year and we could sustain a lot of damage."

MORGAN BOWLERS IN I.A.A. TOURNEY

The Morgan County Farm Bureau men's bowling team will represent 13 west central counties when it goes to Decatur March 8 to compete in the annual Illinois Agricultural association tournament.

They won the championship of Districts 10 and 11 in the tournament held in Springfield last Wednesday by bowling 2721, for a 181 average.

The second place winner was Menard county, with a score of 2621.

Twenty-seven bowlers from Morgan county competed in the district competition. Ed Bray and Joanne Beckman of Jacksonville placed second in the young adult mixed doubles and Art and Betty Nergenah won second in the young adult husband and wife division.

335 Farms Sign Up For ACP Assistance

Wallace T. Hembrough reports 335 farms in Morgan county have signed to participate in the 1960 Agricultural Conservation Program, whereby the federal government assists in the money cost of completing approved practices.

"The response has been very good so far," Hembrough said.

Fourteen farms plan to establish sod waterways; 10 will build standard terraces, one will construct a diversion structure and four will build ponds.

Other practices signed include: 55 acres of intertilled crops, 168 acres of improved pastures; 10 acres of legume manure; 130 rods of tile line to drain waterways; 290 rods of short tile lines to drain individual wet spots in fields; 10 erosion control structures and 221 acres of brush cleaning and pasture improvement.

On 265 farms the operators desire to spread limestone, rock phosphate or potash, where the need is established by soil tests, before July 31. Those who wish to spread these materials later are requested to sign up Aug. 1 through Aug. 15.

The sign-up period for approved practices extends through the year, or as long as funds are available. The country office still has money that has not been allocated.

Scott Pigs Set Gain Rate Mark

The Poland China Record association of Galesburg announces that a group of Scott county hogs had the highest rate of gain ever recorded by the association.

The test qualified Henderson's Choice SMS, herd boar owned by LaVern Jones of Winchester, as a superior meat type sire.

Nineteen head of his pigs were fed out in two different groups. They averaged 207 pounds at only 140 days of age and required only 3.6 pounds of commercial feed to make a pound of gain.

The 13 head that were slaughter-tested averaged 29.01 inches of carcass length, only 1.40 inches of backfat and 4.63 square inches of loin-eye muscle.

Tighten Moisture Limits On Corn After Feb. 29

Persons who desire to get a government loan on their 1959 corn crop should make immediate application at the local ASC office, announces Wallace T. Hembrough, office manager.

"Moisture limits will be raised on March 1. Some cribs of corn that would qualify this week could not be accepted after March 1," he says.

At the present time corn stored in cribs eight feet wide can carry 21 per cent moisture and still be eligible. After March 1 the content must be down to 19½ to qualify for loan.

For 10 foot cribs the figures are 19 and 17½ per cent. For 12 foot cribs the allowance now is 17 percent and will go down to 15½ per cent on March 1.

Much of the 1959 corn crop, and especially that stored in wide cribs, has been too wet for loan thusfar. The crop hasn't dried out to any extent this winter; in fact, some corn is carrying more moisture now than it did six weeks ago.

A little more than 530,000 bushels of 1959 corn has been sealed in Morgan county. Purchase agreements, whereby the government guarantees support prices for the corn but does not extend cash loans, will be available until May 31.

The population of Asia is increasing by 30 million people a year, according to a National Geographic Society survey.

This Week.. at Dixon Springs

A minimum amount of tillage has been used at the Station in producing corn. In most cases if less had been used, it would have been practically nothing. The seedbed has been prepared with nothing more than plowing, and on sod crops plowing can leave plenty of places big enough to hide big rabbits. But the corn is planted in the tractor wheel tracks, so it's not as bad as it appears. The tractor wheels make the kind of seedbed needed for top corn yields. At any rate, yields have been good as or better than yields on ground that is worked well ahead of planting.

Less Costly

Minimum tillage cuts down gas, time, and machinery cost. In addition, and perhaps more important, it reduces soil and water losses. Last year Lee Gard, Station soil and water researcher, found that wheel-track planting could save as much as 3 or 4 inches of rainfall and reduce soil losses by several thousand pounds on each acre.

Lee planted corn on both 5 and 9 per cent slopes, using the minimum tillage or wheel-track system and the conventional system on both slopes. Yields were not too different for the two systems. On the 5 per cent slope, wheel-track planting yielded 76 bushels an acre as against 69 bushels for the conventional seedbed; on the 9 per cent slope, wheel-track planting yielded 87 bushels as against 85 bushels for the conventional seedbed.

Less Runoff

The 1959 corn-growing season, May to September, was a wet one, with about 29 inches of rainfall. On the 9 per cent slopes, with the conventional seedbed, one-fifth of the rainfall ran off, carrying with it nearly 8 tons of soil from each acre, while in the minimum-tillage system only one-tenth of the rain ran off and fewer than 1½ tons of soil were lost. On the 5 per cent slopes, less than 1 inch of water ran off and only 300 pounds of soil were lost with minimum tillage, while with the conventional system 4 1/3 inches of water ran off and more than 2 tons of soil were lost.

Physical condition of the soil made the difference. Conventional tillage causes the soil to run together and crust. Minimum tillage keeps the soil open and porous so that it can soak up more rainfall at a faster rate. Lee would caution anyone who grows corn on slopes not to rely entirely on minimum tillage as a water and soil-conserving practice. But, when used in conjunction with other practices, such as good fertility, meadow and grain rotations, contouring, strip-cropping, and terracing, minimum tillage can help.

—H. A. Cate

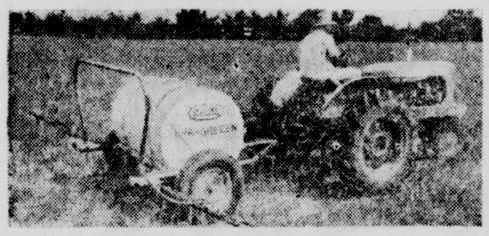

Corn disappeared at a record rate during the October-December quarter. Total disappearance during the quarter is estimated at 1,067 million bushels. This was 8 percent more than a year ago and 24 percent more than the five-year 1953-58 average.

Change crankcase oil more often in winter than in summer. Odd jobs around the farmstead do not get the tractor warmed up, and the oil becomes contaminated with unburned fuel, water and acid.

Have Ham Supper At Sportsmen's Meeting Tuesday

The Jacksonville Sportsmen's Club held its regular monthly meeting at the club house Tuesday, Feb. 16. A supper of ham and beans was served to about 50 members.

The new officers conducted the meeting. Officers are: Jerry Murphy, president; Earl Walters, vice president; Alfred Enke, secretary; William Mills, treasurer and directors Cecil Patterson, Fred Spaulding, Herschel Hickey, Virgil Gibbs, Jim McGath and Pryor Bossarte.

Committees appointed by the president are: Quail, Gene McDaniel; grounds, Garry Birdsong; fish and lake, D. Peters and Leroy Duffer; program, Walter Keeran; refreshments, Jim McGath; trap shoot, Fred Spaulding; publicity, D. Peters and Pryor Bossarte; fish fry, Herb Simke, and maintenance, Claude Goes.

During the meeting Carl Baum announced that a number of the members had secured about 400 adult black bass and crappie which were put in the club's lake to improve the fishing for the members.

Gene McDaniel announced that he had contacted the state in preparation for getting quail for the club. He then introduced Harvey Creed, state conservation officer for this district. Mr. Creed gave the club information on the procedure for getting the quail. He also gave instructions on their care and release.

The state furnishes quail to clubs when the quail are about a week and a half old. The clubs then keep them for about seven weeks before releasing them. The quail are released in the county where they were raised.

He also stated that the state furnishes about 85,000 quail to sportsmen's clubs in Illinois. The local club plans to raise about 325 quail to be released in Morgan county.

After the meeting a film on speckled trout fishing and another on goose propagation and hunting were shown.

Scholarship Finalists

THOMAS SHANLE

KATHLEEN CURTIS

Thomas Shanle and Kathleen Curtis, seniors of Routt College High School, have been named among the 10,000 national finalists in the 1959-60 competition of the National Merit Scholarship Corporation Program, according to Principal Edward S. Plichta.

Thomas is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Shanle, 320 Franklin street; Kathleen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Curtis, 265 Webster avenue.

These students were awarded and have received the certificates which attest to their high academic purpose, after distinguishing themselves by their high scores on two college aptitude tests used in the NMS competition.

At an earlier date as semifinalists, their names were published in a booklet which has been widely distributed to colleges, universities, and other scholarship agencies for consideration of other scholarships offered outside of the Merit Program.

The selection of the finalists who will be awarded Merit scholarships in 1960 is performed by the Merit Scholar Selection Committee, a panel of experts in academic selection and by special judging teams conveyed by various donors of Merit Scholarships. High school grades, leadership, citizenship and extra-curricular activities are considered as well as test scores.

Merit Scholarships are four-year awards, and carry stipends that range from $100 a year to $1,500 a year. Each stipend is individually determined on the basis of need.

The National Merit Scholarship Corporation was established in 1955 with grants of $20.5 million from the Ford Foundation and the Carnegie Corporation of New York. The current program is the fifth that has been conducted.

The sixth program will begin on March 8 (alternate date March 19) with the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test to be given in an estimated 15,000 high schools.

Beef Standing Rib Roast

A generous serving of this Beef Standing Rib Roast is truly an example of gracious living, because the flavor is unsurpassed and the carving of it is accomplished with ease.

Note the short length of the rib bones—that's the modern way of cutting. They are left just long enough to make carving a pleasure. Both the chine bone and feather bones have been removed, and for your convenience have the market man do that for you. Thus the roast will be boneless except for the rib bones. These should be kept in place because they help to hold the natural shape of the roast and serve as a carving guide.

There is a secret to the proper cooking of this Beef Standing Rib Roast, but fortunately it is a secret that is fun to tell because you can get perfect results every time. The secret is in the use of a low oven temperature throughout the entire roasting period. The oven regulator is set at 300° F. for roasting and it remains at that setting until the roast reaches the desired degree of doneness. All family size beef standing rib roasts are cooked at this same oven temperature; the degree of doneness being determined by the length of roasting time.

Allow 18 to 20 minutes per pound for a rare roast; 22 to 25 minutes per pound for a medium roast and 27 to 30 minutes per pound for a roast cooked well-done. Of course when a roast meat thermometer is used, the degree of doneness is registered right on it—140° F. for a rare beef. 160° F. for a medium, and 170° F. for a well-done beef roast.

The preparation of a beef standing rib roast is easy; Season first with salt and pepper, then place it on a rack in an open roasting pan, being sure the fat side is up. Insert a meat thermometer into the center of the thickest part but do not let the bulb rest in fat or on bone. Do not add any water to the pan, and do not cover. Place in a 300° F. oven and roast until the desired degree of doneness has been reached. Let stand in a warm place for 20 to 30 minutes before serving in order for the meat to set and make carving easy.

Welfare Project Highlights National Beauty Salon Week

The tenth annual National Beauty Salon week was observed in Jacksonville by Unit 27, Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Associaton, by sponsoring a variety of welfare projects throughout the city.

Each patient and student received free shampoos, haircuts and styling in line with the new spring fashions. Simple styles requiring a minimum of care were featured.

In addition to the project last Monday, the local hairdressers visited both hospitals and several Jacksonville nursing homes.

The local group also sponsored a hair fashion show during the observance of National Beauty Salon week at the Amvets club. Nineteen models and artists participated in the program which featured hair styles for many different occasions.

Mr. Khrushchev—World Statesman—

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev attends a civic reception in New Delhi, India. He was five days in the country. Most of the time he spent talking to Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru and visiting a Soviet-equipped farm and a Soviet-built steel mill. A joint Russian-Indian communique noted that he received a reception "which was impressive for the degree of popular enthusiasm which it displayed." To Western observers, this seemed an exaggeration.

Meredosia Home Bureau Unit Has All Day Meeting

MEREDOSIA — Tuesday the Progressive Unit of Home Bureau held an all-day meeting at the home of Mrs. Charles Schmitt, beginning at 10:30 a.m. with the pledge to the flag.

The members and guests moved to the kitchen, where Mrs. Aldo Hierman presented the major lesson "Chicken in the Menu." The demonstrations included preparing a Rock Cornish hen for broiling, another for baking in foil and stuffing a baked rooster with rice dressing, which she had mixed before the meeting. Mrs. Hierman then prepared Hawaiian salad, which was served with the sack lunches brought by the women.

After lunch and while the chickens were baking, Mrs. Robert Lansink read "Our Land Through Lincoln's Eyes" and showed pictures illustrating the reading. The selected subject, "Spot Removal," was given by Mrs. Albert Telling.

Mrs. Oscar Nortrup, unit chairman, presided at the business session. The song of the month for February was "Yankee Doodle." Fourteen members and two guests answered roll call with a saying of Lincoln's. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were followed by the reading of the highlights of the county board meeting. A rising vote of thanks was given to the leaders and hostess.

The meeting again moved to the kitchen, where Mrs. Hierman continued her demonstration. She wrapped chicken livers in bacon slices and broiled them; at the same time she broiled chicken wings which she brushed often and liberally with barbecue sauce. Mixing this sauce was a part of the lesson. Generous samples of all the foods were passed.

For recreation Mrs. Henry Schroeder and Mrs. Minnie Steinberg conducted several contests; Mrs. Hierman and Mrs. Nortrup won prizes.

The March meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Steinberg; Miss Graves will have the major lesson and Mrs. C. G. Wegehoft will present the selected subject.

Curtis Sparks Routt To 68-55 Decision

FARMERSVILLE — Guard Fred Curtis did everything and did it well in leading Routt to a 68-55 verdict over Farmersville Friday night in the Rockets' final game of the season.

Curtis tossed in 29 points on 12 field goals and five charity awards and played an outstanding floor game. He also got his teammates some good shots by baffling the hosts with precision-like passes.

The victory gave Routt a 23 win, four loss record to take into Regional play. The tall and rangy Farmersville five suffered loss number seven against 16 wins.

Farmersville employed a tight man to man defense but it proved to be to no avail as Routt garnered a 23-12 first period lead and were never in trouble.

Billy Tobin, Tom Shanle, Mickey Walker and George Trutter also turned in fine performances for the winners.

Blueboys Clinch Win In Final Seconds, 85-82

EUREKA—With 30 seconds remaining in the game and Illinois College leading by two points, guard Larry Brown of the Blueboys was awarded a technical foul shot and he sank it for a clinching 85-82 win over Eureka Friday night.

Terry Ransom, who paced Blueboy scorers with 26 markers, fouled out with four minutes left in the close battle. Coach Bill Merris' five got help from Larry Scott in the first half, as he hit 18 of his 23 points, and this kept IC on top at halftime, 46-41.

Eureka's whole offense in the second half was Kent Knox, who scored 17 of his 28 points, in the opening eight minutes of the half.

Illinois College's victory was its eighth against 12 setbacks. The Redmen now own a 7-9 season's mark.

Both teams were about even in the field goal percentages with IC hitting 41 from the field and Eureka 40 per cent.

Little Nell Signs For $50,000--A New Club Record

CHICAGO (AP) — Second baseman Nellie Fox, the American League's Most Valuable Player in 1959, Friday agreed to a 1960 Chicago White Sox contract calling for close to $50,000, a club record.

Fox was the highest salaried player on the Sox' pennant-winning club last season at an estimated $42,500.

He came to terms in a telephone conservation from his St. Thomas, Pa., home with Hank Greenberg, a Sox vice president.

Earlier in the day, Greenberg also came to terms on the phone with third baseman Gene Freese, acquired last December from the Philadelphia Phils.

The Sox now have 28 of their 29 players under contract. Regulars still outside the fold are outfielder Minnie Minoso, back again from the Cleveland Indians, and shortstop Luis Aparicio.

Fox, who will be starting his 11th White Sox season, hit .306 in 156 games last year, setting 7 major league records and leading the Pale Hose in five hitting departments.

Little Nell, an American League All-Star performer 8 years, led all league second basemen in fielding with .988, committing only 10 errors in 827 chances.

Fox reportedly rejected one Sox contract before coming to terms, but Greenberg said "we were never very far apart."

Freese, who led the Phils in homers last year with 23, came to the Sox from the Phils Dec. 8 in a swap for rookie outfielder Johnny Callison.

Friday Night Cage Scores

New Berlin 71 Tri-City 44

NEW BERLIN — The Pretzels downed John Mooney's five Friday night by a comfortable margin as Tim Sullivan, Carl Compardo and Ed Harney paced the victors in their 71-44 win.

Tri-City fell behind in the first stanza as they trailed at the end of the first quarter by 10 points, 18-8. By the time the mid-way point of the game rolled around, the Pretzels had moved the score to 34-20 in their favor.

With the opening of the second half the host five continued to pour in the buckets and moved to a 23 point margin at the end of the third quarter, and during the final session of the game the New Berlin five coasted to a 71-44 victory, the 20th of the year.

The Pretzel scoring was even with three men hitting double figures and the rest of the team giving good support. For the Tri-City five Allen Miller dumped in 14 tallies with McCoy following with 10 markers. The losers made a gallant effort to overtake the lead, but the big margin made the situation tough. From the charity line the losers hit 18, while New Berlin was able to put only 13 in, but the field attack of the losers broke down as they were handed the loss.

White Hall 78 Hardin 72

HARDIN — The Hardin Tigers gave a splendid showing of persistence Friday night as they ran hard to push the White Hall five, but were not quite strong enough in height and defense, as they gave the win to the Maroons by a 78-72 score.

The game started off with the Tigers moving into the lead, and at the end of the first quarter they maintained the lead by a 7 point margin, 19-12. With the game continuing into the second quarter the Tigers held onto the lead, but at the half were able to enjoy only a 2 point margin, 32-30.

The third quarter proved fruitful for the Maroons as they overtook the Tigers and pulled into the lead, to finish the third quarter with a 7 point margin, 56-49. In the final quarter Hardin did not give up, but White Hall's tall boys paid off as they kept the lead and took the game, with the Tigers taking a 6 point deficit, and their 13th loss of the season.

Powell of the Maroons took the high man honors for the evening with 22 tallies on 9 field shots and 4 charity tosses, with three other men putting up strong backing.

Virginia 50 Greenfield 47

GREENFIELD — After coming from behind in the first quarter the Virginia Redbirds slipped past the Greenfield Tigers to hand the Tigers a 3 point deficit, 50-47, and at the same time take the first place berth in the Illinois Valley Conference.

Rich Webster was the big gun for the Redbirds as he picked up 22 points. Walter played good ball as he added 17 markers to the Redbird cause.

Wilbert Wellhausen tied with Webster for the high point honors of the game as he added 22 tallies to the Tiger cause, but not enough to pull the game out of the fire.

Greenfield took the lead at the end of the first quarter, and then at the end of the first half, still kept possession of the margin with a 24-20 reading.

At the end of the third quarter the scoreboard showed a deadlocked situation, 32-all, and the game continued in the final session as a nip-and-tuck battle. Feature Sports, Inc., Granted Boxing License

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Roy Cohn's new boxing group, Feature Sports, Inc., was granted a license to promote in New York State Friday. A club official said the promoters hope to hold the Ingemar Johansson-Floyd Patterson heavyweight title rematch June 22 at New York's Polo Grounds.

Jack Fugazy, managing director of Feature Sports, said he would be disappointed if the rematch of last June's fight did not draw 1½ million dollars at the gate with tickets priced at $100 tops. He said the matter of home TV or closed circuit TV would be discussed later.

Although Fugazy said he hoped to hold the fight in New York, he left the door open in case of further complications. He said he had guarantees from two unidentified cities to stage the fight.

Fugazy said the only obstacle to holding the fight in New York was what he called "the attorney general's suitcase." Presumably he meant the antitrust proceedings announced today against several groups, including Feature Sports as the successor to Rosensohn Enterprises, Inc., as a result of the first fight. The attorney general also claims back taxes are due the state on theater, TV and movie rights.

"We think we can wind up our litigation with the attorney general's office," said Tom Bolan, a Cohn law associate who was licensed Friday as treasurer of Feature Sports.

Bolan said Edwin Ahlquist, Johansson's adviser, and the new promoters were in complete agreement on all points.

Actually the license to promote does not amount to a permission to promote the Johansson-Patterson fight. Contracts for that bout must be approved by the New York State Athletic Commission. Bolan said he anticipated no problems.

Jim Reedy Moves Into Contention For Scoring Lead

NEW YORK (AP)—Jim Reedy of Bridgewater, Va., with a 146-point output in four games last week, has moved into a challenging position for the small college basketball scoring championship.

The weekly statistics released Friday by the NCAA Service Bureau showed that Reedy has climbed from 12th to 5th place with a 29.2 average.

Kelly Coleman of Kentucky Wesleyan continues to set the pace with a 31.1 average. He is followed by Dom Perrelli of Southern Connecticut 30.6, Warren Spraggins of Virginia Union 30.0 and Jim McDonald of West Virginia Wesleyan 29.4.

Edwin Cox of Howard Payne took over the lead in field goal accuracy with .560 whole Ron Slaymaker of Empria State has regained the top spot in foul shooting with .913 mark. Zelmo Beatty of Prairie View maintained his lead in rebounding, pulling down 23 per cent. The figures include games of Saturday, Feb. 13.

Mississippi College boosted its leading offense average to 113.6 points a game. Wittenberg is the defense pace-setter with an average yield of 45.6 points.

West Virginia Wesleyan is the leader in field goal accuracy with .529. Lemoyne (N.Y.) heads the foul shooting list with .774 and Plattsburgh (N.Y.) State has the best rebound record with 61.5 per cent.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Washington Redskins Friday announced the signing of tackle Bob Toneff and end Bill Anderson. Both players were in Washington this week to receive trophies as the outstanding performers of the 1959 Redskins.

Feitshans Overpowers JHS In 2nd Half, 68-53

The Jacksonville High Crimsons, leading 32-28 at halftime, folded in the third quarter and Feitshans of Springfield scored 15 straight points to subdue Coach John Chapman's aggregation at the Bowl Friday night in their next to last home appearance of the regular season, 68-53.

After a creditable performance in the first half, the losers lost whatever chance they had for their fourth triumph when they amassed only five points on two field goals and a charity toss in the third canto. And these all came at scattered intervals in the remaining 4:39 of the quarter.

By the time Norton collected JHS' first two points of the third period with 4:39 remaining, Coach Bob Carpenter's Flyers were leading, 43-34.

Jacksonville also had difficulty hitting the bucket in the final stanza, going for 2:30 without a score until Chip Baldwin's layup with 5:30 left and by then the scoreboard read 58-39 in Feitshans' favor.

The Jacks got a first quarter lead, 7-4, before the Flyers caught up but guard Gary Spangenberg gave JHS a lead for the remainder of the initial period when he hit with 3:18 left, 9-8. The Crimsons led 14-10 at one stage but the winners closed the gap to 14-12 at the first break.

With John Bourn and Spangenberg setting the second quarter pace, Jacksonville overcame three six-point deficits, 22-16, 24-18, and 26-20, to catch up and go ahead on four consecutive free throws by Spangenberg.

Mike Mentler's fading jump shot just as the final halftime horn sounded gave the Crimsons a 32-28 margin. But the lead quickly vanished at the start of the third stanza.

Spangenberg and Bourn led Crimson scorers with 18 and 11 points. The Flyers dominated board play and got balanced scoring from Louis Barger, 23, Hiram Jackson, 13, Loren Larson, 13, and Gary Pierce, 10.

The win was the 15th against nine defeats for the Capital City five and the loss was Jacksonville's 16th in 19 outings.

Highlanders Trounce Harris Teachers, 75-57

The Highlanders of MacMurray College handed the Harris Teachers Hornets a resounding 75-57 defeat Friday at the Hardin Avenue Fieldhouse.

Free throws made the difference that gave MacMurray a nine point, 29-22 lead after the first fifteen minutes of play as the clan sank 9 of their 12 attempts, and the Hornets could not make a one of their 7 tries count. Roy Hahnfeld, scoring 11 points and grabbing nearly as many rebounds, led the Highlanders in the frame. MacMurray led at the mid-point, 36-25.

Harris center Art Sidner scored 9 points in the first 6 minutes of the second stanza to lead a Hornet counterattack which cut the MacMurray lead to 6 points, 47-41. The clan's defense tightened, however, and for five and one-half minutes Harris was held scoreless while MacMurray scored five field goals to take a 57-41 lead which was never again challenged. The MacMurray reserves boosted the lead to 18 points in the closing minutes and wrapped up the game for the clan, 75-57.

Ron Price of MacMurray and Art Sidner of Harris shared the scoring honors for the game, with 19 tallies each. Roy Hahnfeld added 16 for the clan. MacMurray dropped in 46% of their field shots, while the Hornets of St. Louis hit only 34%. At the charity line MacMurray shot 63% and Harris sank 43%.

The win gave MacMurray a 14-6 record with four games left to play, and closed out the Harris Teachers' season at the 15 win, 7 loss mark. MacMurray had won over Harris earlier in the season, 66-65.

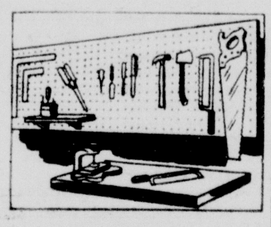

MacMurray takes on Carthage College next Tuesday in the final game on the home hardwood. The clan will finish off the season in the Chicago area when they meet Elmhurst College and Lewis College Feb. 26 and 27.

It's 15 Years Since U.S. Marines Stormed Iwo Jima; Cary Tells What It's Like Today

Editor's Note Fifteen years ago men were dying on the blackened, bloody beaches and shell-scarred craggy slopes of a tiny Pacific island. The slopes led up Mt. Suribachi. The island was Iwo Jima. Here's an anniversary report.

By JAMES CARY

IWO JIMA (AP)—A faded image lost in time. Six tattered Marines. A flag rising.

Below them down the crumbling slopes of Mt. Suribachi, a scene from hell: The barren black sands of Iwo Jima, grotesquely shattered remnants of trees, churned ground and the deafening thunder of two armies locked in death agony.

Last Friday, 15 years after that most savage battle of the Pacific war began, a small band of Marines atop Suribachi marked the anniversary.

A circular bronze plaque bearing the 5th Marine Division spearheaded insignia was bolted around the flagpole base. A speech, a prayer and three volleys. Taps floated slowly over the island where 6,821 Americans and 20,000 Japanese died.

Today Suribachi stands like a great cenotaph over a placid Iwo Jima and its ghosts of the past. Sandpipers wheel in the sky and shining jets swoop down to land at a neat U. S. Air Force base situated at a strategic crossroads of the Pacific.

White quonsets line one side of the field. An expansive black runway cuts diagonally across the island's center. And always in the background — a vaulted brilliant sky and the endless sea, roll in blue, green and white.

For the 400 lonely men of the 6361 Airbase Squadron, Iwo is a 12-month exile, 670 miles south of Tokyo, broken only by a brief leave in Japan after five months. There are no women, no night clubs. Only work, sports, hobbies and the long hours when a tiny island of eight square miles leaves one alone with his thoughts.

Many climb 554 feet up the eroding sides of Suribachi, washed by 60 inches of rainfall annually, to gaze over the scenes where so much happened a short time ago.

Iwo lies before them like a giant porkchop, with Suribachi at the small, southern extremity, and to the north the rough, broken plateau where the Japanese fought to annihilation.

Down to the right the invasion beaches stretch in a surf-washed ebony arch up the east coast. It was there two Marine divisions smashed ashore Feb. 19, 1945, after the most intensive naval and air pounding of the war.

A regiment of the 5th Division slashed across the island that first day. On Feb. 24 its men raised the flag on Suribachi. But for 26 days the battle raged before Iwo was declared secure. Not until the 35th day was the final Japanese attack beaten off.

Five weeks and 26,038 Americans killed, wounded or missing.

Three of those killed were in the famous picture of the flag raising on Iwo Jima made by Associated Press photographer Joe Rosenthal: Cpl. Franklin R. Sousley of Ewing, Ky., Cpl. Harlon H. Block of Weslaco, Tex., and Sgt. Michael Strank of Conemaugh, Pa.

Ira Hayes, a Pima Indian and one of the three flag-raisers who survived the campaign, had difficulty finding a place in the civilian world. He died of exposure and alcoholism on the Sacaton Indian reservation in Arizona in 1955.

Former Navy Pharmacist's Mate John H. Bradley is a funeral director in Antigo, Wis. The other survivor is Rene Gagnon, former Marine private first class, now an agent for Northeast Airlines in charge of an office at the Manchester, N.H., airport. He and his wife have a son, Rene Jr., 13.

Iwo Jima has been called Japan's most effective stand of the war. Gen. Tadamichi Kuribayashi forbade the banzai charges that had always ruined Japanese resistance before. He organized his defenses in successive, interlocking lines, tied together by an intricate system of caves.

Every pillbox and bunker became a separate fort. Only 1,083 prisoners were taken.

Gen. Kuribayashi knew the fight was hopeless long before it started.

In letters to his family he wrote: "Do not plan for my return . . . We will be invaded at any time . . . The naval guns have obliterated all the houses and burned everything above ground . . . They have destroyed our positions, blasted most of the trees and grass. The airfield looks like it has been ploughed. Iwo Jima is too devasted to describe."

For the Marines who landed there it was like being hurled into the inferno.

"The noise and the stench—I remember them so well," said U. S. Air Force Capt. John S. Gunnison of Denver, Colo., who recently revisited Iwo for the first time since landing there as a Marine mortarman on the fourth day of the battle.

"If the shells didn't kill you the noise and stench would. It's so quiet now."

Much of the ugliness is gone too. Rolling fields of red topped grass, dense stands of green brush, wild sugar cane and an occasional banana tree cover Iwo's scars.

But shattered Japanese blockhouses protrude through the drifting sand. Rusting shell fragments litter the ground. Stone cliff faces are pockmarked with shell holes and an occasional Japanese cave.

Grass is growing through the crumbling remains of the two original Japanese airfields.

In the northwestern corner of Iwo near Kitano Point visitors are taken to a cave where Gen. Kuribayashi is believed to have had his headquarters before he killed himself as the final Japanese resistence was collapsing.

His body was never found. All but a few of the Japanese remains are still sealed in the caverns and tunnels where they died.

On a high point overlooking the sea near the northern end of the island stand two white wooden pillars and a stone tablet erected by Buddhist priests, enscribed "In memory of the Japanese war dead."

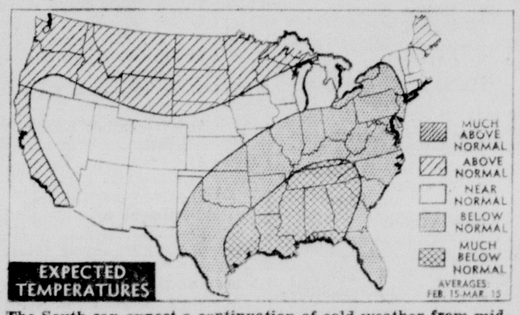

A few miles away another small concrete and stone memorial sits in a gently rising carpet of wild grass where white crosses of the U. S. 4th Marine Division cemetery once stretched to the horizon.

"That these men shall not have died in vain," say the few words, etched in stone.

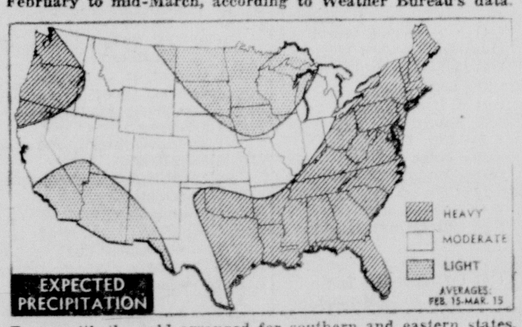

The American dead have long since been removed, but the Japanese dead still sleep on Iwo Jima, where the wind blows in fresh and strong every day from the sea.

Maps below show the U.S. Weather Bureau's estimate of temperatures and precipitation for the period mid-February to mid-March.

The South can expect a continuation of cold weather from mid-February to mid-March, according to Weather Bureau's data.

To go with the cold arranged for southern and eastern states, precipitation in that part of nation is expected to be heavy.

List Committees At Meeting Of Sinclair Club

Mrs. Reuben Bates was hostess Wednesday, Feb. 17, to the Sinclair Woman's club at Hamilton's cafe.

The president, Mrs. Roy Ward, called the meeting to order and the pledge to the flag was repeated in unison. Mrs. Harry Martin was in charge of devotions, followed by the club prayer.

Mrs. Roy Ward named the committees for the year books and nominating as follows: Mrs. William Dobbs, Mrs Lyman Fox and Mrs. Lester Martin, year book committee;

Mrs. Dean Walpole, Mrs. Clyde Martin and Mrs. Marvin Martin, nominating committee.

The afternoon program was in charge of Mrs. Donald Lowe, who read an interesting article, "The Difference Between Black and White." She also read some humorous jokes.

Roll call was answered with a quotation of Lincoln or Washington. A contest was won by Mrs. Myrtle Martin and Mrs. Minnie Bealmer. The meeting closed with the club collect.

Lovely refreshments were served by the hostess. Guests were Mrs. Edwin Gordon, Mrs. Roy Robinson and Mrs. William Clayton.

The next meeting will be held on March 16 at Hamilton's with Mrs. Dean Walpole as hostess.

Install Officers In Greenfield Baptist Class

GREENFIELD — The Philathea Class of the Baptist Sunday School met Tuesday night in the church annex. Miss Pearl Bermes gave the program on the subject "Interesting Facts About Abraham Lincoln."

The following officers were installed: Mrs. Frank Greer, president; Mrs. Paul Overbey, vice president.

Mrs. T. E. Van Bebber, secretary and Mrs. Charles Meneley, treasurer.

The hostesses, Mrs. William Lahr, Mrs. Ralph Dewey and Mrs. Hazle Crouch, carried out the patriotic theme in refreshments and decorations.

At Son's Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. George O. Bermes attended the wedding of their son, Richard Bermes, and Miss Patricia Cavin, at Anastasia Church in Waukegan, Sunday. They will reside in St. Louis, where Mr. Bermes is employed as an electrical engineer by Emerson Electric Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Cook entertained at dinner Sunday night in observance of the February birthdays of Mrs. Charles E. Burroughs, Mrs. Floyd Cook, E. E. Cook and George C. Green of Carrollton.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Robinson are parents of a son, second child, born at Boyd Memorial hospital, Carrollton, Monday. They have a daughter, Vickie 7. Mrs. Robinson is the former Melba Love, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nile Love, of this city.

District Officer At Ashland WSCS Birthday Party

ASHLAND — The annual WSCS birthday party was held Tuesday evening, at 7 p.m. in the basement of the local Methodist church. The special birthday guest was Mrs. Melvin A. Sims of Liberty, Ill., district vice-president of WSCS.

The tables were beautifully set for each month of the year by the co-chairmen, Mrs. Carl Orne and Mrs. Ralph Weber, and their committee, Mrs. John Sutherd, Mrs. Tom Clemons and Mrs. Harry Winkelman.

An impressive feature was the lighting of the candles on the individual birthday cakes. As the roll of members was called, each woman lit her own candle.

The evening's program, "Workers With the Master Gardener" was a skit depicting the activities and achievements of all the officers, secretaries and chairmen of Circles. A painting of a garden prepared by Robert Riggs, was used to illustrate the work.

Mrs. Sid Campbell sang Isabelle Firestone's well known "In the Garden" and "No Man Is An Island."

The program had been planned by Mrs. Maurice Plattner, Mrs. Iris Parsons, Mrs. Bernice Hayes and Mrs. E. L. Beadles.

Hearing Monday

A public hearing concerning the proposed zoning ordinance for Ashland will be held Monday, Feb. 29, in the high school at 7 p.m.

Copies of the proposed ordinance are available for examination, and they may be obtained by contacting Mayor Bill Quinley.

TV NEWS
by DON SHUMAKER

Tired of just baking pies and cakes, ladies? Then try your hand at the newest culinary innovation . . . baking faces. The man dispensing this startling new recipe is not the master chef of a world-famous restaurant, but veteran TV makeup-man, Dick Smith. And the results of his oven are meant not for the table, but for the TV screen. Dick Smith is a man in charge of aging and changing the faces of actors on live TV dramas.

Here's his recipe in a few, not-so-simple steps: First mold the actor's face in clay. Then sculpt on the clay the facial changes desired and make a plaster cast of the new features. Pour foam latex into the cavity between masks and mold, and bake in an oven until almost hard. Presto . . . thin, pliable latex pieces to be affixed to the face with spirit-gum, to turn a clean-cut 20-year-old into a wrinkled octogenarian. Examples? Using this technique, Smith "aged" Sterling Hayden for "Ethan Frome," "scarred" Sir Laurence Oliver for "Moon and Sixpence," and "jowled" Eli Wallach for "I, Don Quixote." (Say . . . if you can age and uglify actors with this method, why couldn't a person make himself younger and handsomer the same way? Let's see . . . "First mold the face in clay . . .") The first step in getting full enjoyment of TV is to have your set in perfect working order. If your set is not operating perfectly, call Shumaker TV & Appliance. Our service department is manned by expert trained technicians, using the latest modern test equipment. This insures you of fast, accurate TV repair, and, because it's fast, saves you time and money. Call us next time. SHUMAKER TV AND APPLIANCES, 222 East State. Phone 5-6595.

Man's Deepest Dive

A dream of years became a reality on Jan. 23, 1960, when Swiss scientist Jacques Piccard and U.S. Navy Lt. Don Walsh plunged to the bottom of the Pacific Ocean in the bathyscaph Trieste. It was a feat once thought as impossible as sending a man to the moon. For 30 minutes they rested on the floor of the Marianas Trench off Guam, deepest spot in the ocean. Powerful lights showed undersea life never before seen by man, where water pressure was eight and one-half tons to the square inch. News-Graphic shows the record of man's attempts to penetrate ever deeper into the unknown waters which cover most of this world.

BY OSWALD JACOBY

South took the first trick. He saw no reason to duck the lead and perhaps he might want to use his other spade to throw the defenders into the lead.

He played the ace and king of hearts and did not like it at all when West failed to follow. The hand looked almost, but not quite, hopeless.

He led a diamond to dummy's king, returned a diamond, finessing his jack, cashed the ace and led back that three of spades.

East and West ran off four spade tricks. South let three clubs go from his hand and two hearts and a club from dummy.

He had counted East's hand and noted that since he had started with five spades, five hearts and three diamonds, he couldn't have a club also. Now East had to lead a heart and dummy's queen of hearts and last diamond were the seventh and eighth tricks while his own ace of clubs was the ninth.

South would still have made the hand if West held the long spade. He would have let dummy's little diamond go and West would have been forced to lead from the king of clubs to give South his nine tricks that way.

I could not keep scorn from my voice. "You deserve to lose your money," I said. "You were trusted by your depositors and you betrayed their trust. Gullible! Shamefully gullible! What precautions did you take? What investigations did you make? You let this woman beguile and bamboozle you. None of you—and you call yourselves bankers—so much as opened an envelope to see what it contained. But your money is safe. All but what Madam has spent in her career in Syracuse. Nearly a million dollars."

"Where is it? Where is it?" begged Watts.

"It's where Lossie Fox and I put it for safekeeping. It will be placed in the hands of proper authority. Let us proceed with order and decorum," I said, and stared down Banker Watts. "Not hysterically. Let Madam Janeway be taken into custody—and myself, if that be deemed necessary because of my killing of the man Oscar. Then call in the attorney general, for this matter ramifies through the state. There must be strict investigation and equitable division and restitution of this million dollars."

In the end, hopeless and begging for clemency, Madam made full confession. She had been born in Connecticut and at the age of 16 had run away from home. Even so young she exerted an amazing charm upon men. She married a doctor and disappeared with his bank account; she passed forged checks and served two terms in prison.

Another series of frauds made her take refuge with a patent-medicine show, where she allowed herself to stand before a plank while Oscar threw knives at her. She and Oscar planned the Dan'l Drew fraud, selecting Sycrause as remote from New York and a town of promising character.

Oscar demanded that she marry him, and from that date her life became a ghastly experience. He was a dangerous, deadly criminal. He had strangled the Duke because that man had tracked him down and was demanding a share of the loot. He had throttled Gideon Weeks, a brother of Madam's, for the same reason.

Madam was brought to trial and, though she produced a vigorous and clever defense, was convicted and sentenced to 10 years in the state penitentiary.

I was given great credit for saving several banks from ruin—much more than I deserved. But, as Lossie said, it was silly to refuse gifts of the gods. Banker Watts, discredited in the city for his gullibility and carelessness, found it necessary to dispose of his bank holdings.

Oddly enough, these tragic, melodramatic and sometimes humorous events did not bring to an end my connection with George Hull, cigar manufacturer of Binghamton, and the much-disputed Cardiff Giant.

Circumstantial and eyewitness evidence was adduced until it seemed that the story of the hoax would soon be entirely exposed.

One morning George Hull, the cigar manufacturer, came to my office and occupied the client's chair.

"Mr. Applegate," he said, "I'm kind of, sort of, after a fashion, worried about haow I stand."

"With respect to what?"

"The giant," he said. "Too much is bein' unearthed. It won't be long naow before the papers publish all about it. What I come to consult you about, Mr. Applegate, is haow I stand legal."

"Did you ever state orally or in print that the effigy was once a living man? That it was a petrified giant that once had been flesh and blood?"

"Not once," he answered, and grinned. "I just left fools to draw their own conclusions. I didn't have to make statements. All I had to do was stand by and let them make fools of themselves."

"Would you care to tell me the whole truth about it?" I asked.

"Wa-al," he said, "it all come about kind of by chance. I was visitin' my sister out in Iowa, and there was one of them shoutin' evangelists, preachin' Hell-bellered out that there was giants in them days.

"I got to mullin' it over and it come to me I could have my fun and mebbe make some money. So I swapped a keg of beer to a feller for a big block of gypsum. I got a graveyard sculptor in Chicago. He whittled out the giant to my specifications and made it look real by peckin' tiny holes all over it, like the pores in a man's skin."

"Thorough," I observed.

"The tough job was luggin' it to Stubby's farm," he said. "It busted wagons 'n' it caved in bridges. But I got it there and buried it 'n' left it to ripen for a year. Then Stubby dug it up."

"Mr. Hull," I said, "I can inform you that you are guilty of nothing criminal. You made no guarantees. You only let the public draw their own conclusions."

"Which," he said, "they done. Human beings is just eager to get gouged, and willing to fight and bleed for any doggone fool idee, whether it's religion or politics or the 'lavin' on of hands to cure disease. Yup. The's jest one quality all created human beings share. And that, Mr. Applegate, is gullibility."

"So." I was forced to agree. "It would seem. And what are your plans now, Mr. Hull?"

"I figger, since I hain't liable to no pains or penalties to tell the whole story to the papers."

And that is what George Hull proceeded to do. And, weirdly enough, the result of it was to increase the size of the crowds who thronged to see the giant.

XXXVI

Lossie and I decided to go down to the basin to say good-by to Lizzie Ann and to Zach and his woman.

We were going to a musicale, which was a social occasion that required dressing in our best.

She smiled in a sardonic way and said, "How dignified and splendid you look tonight, Orrin! Almost too grown up. I do hope you don't split your coat."

It angered me that she should treat me as if were some hobbledehoy of half her age.

"Anyhow, I'm not scrawny little brat that wouldn't make a mouthful for a crow," I said snappishly.

I had not seen much of Lossie since that day in Madam Janeway's parlor when I had fought with Oscar and when Lossie, being upset by the fighting, had asked me to kiss her. I don't know that she had avoided me, but she did seem to be busy and to have little time for me. And when she did see me she was always aloof and hoity-toity, as if we were comparative strangers instead of play-fellows from babyhood.

I handed her into the buggy, which awaited us in the driveway. I tucked the lap robe about her and she said, "Scrawny," under her breath.

"Well," I told her, "you can't help it. Legs like a couple of broomsticks! Chasing after me like a grasshopper!"

"That," she said furiously, "was years ago! Girls grow up and—and their legs change!"

"Yours," I said, "would have to change a lot."

After that there was a chill in the air until I had driven the buggy as near to the Lizzie Ann as was possible.

We went aboard the Lizzie Ann and I let out a holler to tell Zach Wheelright and his woman that we were there. Zach opened the door, and welcoming sigh, poured out from the cabin and an agreeable odor of coffee and baking.

"Come in and welcome!" he bellowed, and reach up his great hands he swung Lossie down the steps and into the cabin.

Zach goggled at her with eyes as big as saucers, and said, "Maw fur goodness sake, look! Our leetle gal's growed up!"

"I took note fur some time," Maw said dryly. "Soon she'll be gittin' her a man, Zach, and we'll be losin' our leetle gal."

"You'll never lose me, Maw," Lossie said gently.

And then Maw Wheelright turned her bright eyes upon me and said sourly, "Heaven knows you've growed up, Orrin Applegate. But big as you be, ye hain't growed up as much as her. I suppose ye hain't had sense to make up your mind yit or to see what's what."

"Make up my mind about what, Maw Wheelright?"

"Some," Maw said to Lossie, "is dumber'n what others be. This one, he takes the prize."

"He is stupid," Lossie said, and nodded for emphasis. "But I'd rather he came to scratch by himself."

Zach roared with Homeric laughter. "Proba'ly," he said, "the boy's been thataway for a long time, but hain't woke up to it. Some folks need nudgin'."

"He's so thick-skinned," Lossie said, 'that he doesn't notice nudges."

"Set daown," Maw commanded me. I did so, and she stood in front of me bristling like an angry bantam hen. "Look ye here, Orrin Applegate. Ye been arunnin' around with our Lizzie Ann since ye both was babies."

"Yes'm," I said. "We're next-door neighbors."

"The time's full ripe," she went on inexorably, "when her folks must ax what is your intentions?"

"My intentions?" I exclaimed.

"Let's start easy and elementary," Maw said. "Look at her standin' there."

I did so. There was no doubt that Lossie was as lovely a girl could be. I did not look into her eyes, but a pleasant sort of excitement took possession of me.

"Thin's back," Maw said peremptorily. "Call to mind the day when ye feared harm had come to her."

"I call it to mind very clearly," I said.

"To be sure," Maw went on. "And that day ye fought 'n' killed a dangerous bad man. Why did ye do so, Orrin?"

"Because I hated him."

"So - oo - oo!" Maw exclaimed. "And why did ye hate him, boy?"

"Because I——" I said and stopped. "Because," I went on in a second, "he dared to threaten her and frighten her. And because I'd tear apart any man that dared so much as lay a finger on her to harm her." I stopped again and looked at Maw Wheelright and then across at Lossie, and I took a stride toward my girl, and I said in a big voice, "You don't need to ask me why I'd do that. You don't need to prompt me any more. She's the most precious thing in the world to me, and I wouldn't want to stay alive if she left me in the world alone."

I ventured to look at Lossie and her eyes were wet, but behind the tears they were lovely and yearning, and her lips were parted, and there was an expression there that was not a smile but was more splendid than a smile. And slowly she lifted her hands toward me until her arms were outstretched.

I heard Zach Wheelright say to his woman, "Woman, I calc'late we best go bide on deck."

So those two fine friends turned their backs on us and left us alone in their warm, cozy cabin.

Then I said to her, "Playmate, what a great, blind oaf I've been!"

And she nodded her head in agreement and came a step nearer. "But," she said softly, "the dandiest great oaf that ever was."

ANOTHER STEP — Sculptor John Calabro of Demarest, N.J., created this bust of a man he's never seen. Police are attempting to apprehend the slayer of four persons found shot to death in the North Brunswick, N.J., home of Dr. Francis Clarke. The bust is a composite of two witnesses' descriptions.
